PROTEST OF THE EIGHT.

Hon. J. C. Normile, Judge of the St. Louis Crim inal Court:

members of the July Grand-jury to

ANOYEL SCENE IN COURT.

Judge Normile advanced from his seat to the side of the bench nearest the jury. "Gentlemen." said he, "this is unprecedented. I don't know what to do. Where are the other four jurors? Are they informed of this?"

Deputy Sheriff Calkin went up stairs and brought down the other four jurors. Mr. Hayward then asked Judge Normile to let him read the complaint of the elaht aloud. The Judge would not, and asked the jury if they could agree to adjourn.

"I think that's the ouly thing we can agree on, your Honor," said Juryman Baggott.

Foreman Lucas got up. "Judge, 'said he. "I'd like you to hear our side of the story," Judge Normile waved him off. "Put it in writing," said he. "Retire, gentlemen!"

Mr. Hayward led the way out. Judge Normile thrust the paper at him. Mr. Hayward didn't want it. If the Judge kept it, it would be published, and that was what the eight desired.

"Keep it, Judge," said Mr. Hayward.

"No, no," said the Judge, "you take it." hr. Hayward took it reluctantly. The eight backed out and up-stairs ahead of the four. As the four followed, Juryman Blossom, smiling broadly, passed a reporter on the stairs. "We may make up our minds to indict some newspaper men," he said jocularly. "How's Frick, by the way?"

The jury was in session only a few minutes when they adjourned to this morning. The eight went to their offices. The four stayed in the room with the Assistant Circuit Attorney and drew up a reply to the complaint or the eight, which they intended to submit to Judge Normile to-day.

The people of St. Louis have a strong impression that systematic fraud marks the administration of some of the State and city departments, and we who present this report to your honor have good reason to believe that impression to be correct. We early found, hower, that although we were in the cority, our efforts in the direction of examples. "What time was that?" asked Juryman Max Judd.

"About 8 o'clock."

"I saw him on the street at 4:30 o'clock," said Mr. Judd.

Then Juryman John S. Momitt said decidedly:

"Certainly it must be something serious that would keep Mr. Lucas away at such a time. He is surely too honorable a man to shirk a duty like this."

"Mr. Lucas has always been very prompt," said another of the eight. "He drives up in a buggy and he is always here by 9:30 o'clock. If he were coming at all he would have been here before this."

"We'll give him till half-past 10," said Juryman F. H. Inxalls.

The jurymen waited and Mr. Lucas did not come. "We certainly ought to meet and report," said Juryman Emile A. Becker. "We will hand this communication of ours to the Judge as a report. If he refuses to receive it because it is not sizned by the foreman, we will stand on the right of any member of the jury to communicate with the Judge."

At 10:30 o'clock the eleven jurymen went into session and voted to adjourn till to-morrow night. They came out and wont different ways to their offices. Jurymen Blossom, Scullin and Heman waited till the eight were gone and then went down stairs into the private office of the Circuit Attorney, where they met Assistant Circuit Attorney tachritz. The four stood in a group, talking for ten minutes. Then Deputy Sheriff Ben Finney, who has charge of the Grand-jury, came down from his post up-stairs with the message from Mr. Lucas that he had arrived. The Assistant Circuit Attorney and the three jury men went up-stairs again, and entering the Grand-jury room, where Foreman Lucas was the grand-jury room, where Foreman Lucas was the search and the content of the circuit for the private of the Grand-jury room, where Foreman Lucas was the search and entering the Grand-jury room, where Foreman Lucas was the search and entering the Grand-jury room, where Foreman Lucas was the search and entering the Grand-jury room, where Foreman Lucas was the search and entering th jury men went up-stairs again, and entering the Grand-jury room, where Foreman Lucas waited went into secret session.

THE EIGHT ARE FIRM. Juryman Ingalls was very much surprised when he heard that the four were sitting together. "It seems evident to me," said he, "that they are going try to make it appear that we are refusing to transact business, while they are willing to go on. I think you will find that every one of the eight is determined not to sit with these gentlemen and to transact no more business under the circumstances."

to transact no more business under the circumstances."

JUDGE NORMILE INTERVIEWED.

In speaking this morning of the action of eight Grand jurors in presenting their sensational report yesterday, Judge Normile said that he was completely taken by surprise, not having received any intimation whatever of what was coming. "I noticed when they come in that some of the chairs were vacant," said the Judge, "but I expected them to be filled right away. I was busy trying a case, you remember, and was watching both sides of the court. When their report was handed to me, it did not occur to me that it was a communication from only a part of the body, but I soon discovered it in reading the communication itself. I didn't read all the report, but enough to see what it was and that it could not be made a part of the court records, and I returned it to them and told them that I could not accept the report, coming as it did from only a part of the jury."

"Do you know, Judge, why some of the Grand-jurors refused to investigate the matters reported on so extensively by the last Grand-jury?"

"I know nothing whatever about it," replied Judge Normile. "I haven't spoken to a single member of the Grand-jury about their work since I instructed them as to their dutles just after they were sworn in."

"Had you been asked for further instruc-plied Judge Normile. "I haven't spoken to a single member of the Grand-jury about their work since I instructed them as to their duties just after they were sworn in." "Had you been asked for further instructions yesterday I suppose it would have been proper for you to give them." "No, it would not. Icalied their attention when they were swornin to the investigations of the last Granj-jury, but it is not for me to instruct them to investigate this or that pupile official or private citizen. My position is a peculiar one. I stand between the accused and the prosecution, and must be in a position to act impartially when it comes to the trial. If I ask the Grand-jury to investigate the actions of a certain per son, that person am justify claim that I am not in a position to give him a fair trial. No, the Grand-jury pursues its investigations without any advice from me except the instructions which the law requires me to give them. If they want advice they look to the circuit Attorney for ft."

Judge Normile was next asked about the authority of a grand-jury to find a true bill on the vote of nine members, one of them having, however, changed his mind before the presentation of the indictment to court. One of the causes of the rupture between the two factions of the present Grand-jury was a difference of opinion on this point. An indictment was drawn up against a certain city official, but when it came to the time for presenting it to the court Foreman Lucas, so it is charged, carried it away in his pocket, claiming that he had reason for believing that one of the nine members who voted for it was desirous of changing his vote, and as eight votes were not enough to voted for it was desirous of changing his ndict he felt justified in withholding the indictment. "I don't wish to answer that question," said the Judge, "as I may be called to pass upon it in court." He was then asked if an indictment once He was then asked if an indictment once presented to court could be withdrawn, and he said it could not. "There was a case of this kind when I was Circuit Attorney," said he. "A Grand-jury indicted a man and then wanted to withdraw the indictment, saying that they had discovered evidence satisfying them that the indictment should not have been found. I told them that the indictment could not be withdrawn, but that if they would give me a written statement of the facts they had told me I would file it with the indictment and then noile pros the indictment, and this was done."

Returning to the subject of majority and statement of the facts they had took me is would lie it with the indictment and then nolle pros the indictment, and this was done."

Returning to the subject of majority and minority reports, the reporter asked Judge Normile if he could not take cognizance of such reports, and if in case the minority yesterday had replied in writing to the communication presented by the majority, both reports could not have been received by the court. "They would not," said the Judge in reply. "I might have read them to see what they were in order to pass upon them, but after ascertaining that they were not the reports of the whole body, either one of them, I could not have made them a part of the court records. I can take notice only of communications from the whole body and anything less than twelve members is not the Grand-jury. I cannot even discharge a portion of it. They must all be present when they are discharged."

Asked if the indictments returned by the Grand-jury would stand if the Grand-jury went to pieces and were not discharged together, Judge Normile said theywould. Indictment once presented to court could not be affected by any subsequent action of the Grand-jury as a body or of its members individually. Indictments, however, voted on and signed but not presented to the court would not be indictments at all.

Judge Normile stated this morning as he did in court yesterday that the action of a portion of the Grand-jury in asking to be discharged was unprecedented. "Nothing of the kind-ever occurred before in the twenty years that I have been connected as officer or attorney with the St. Louis Criminal Court," said he, "and i never heard of such a thing happening before my time here or at any time elsewhere. Other Grand-juries have had disagreements, but they kept the matter to themselves or at least didn't report them to the court."

Mix. Clover's Position.

Circuit Attorney Clover has not been in the Grand-jury nous since the present Grand-ter to themselves or at least didn't report them to the court."

Mix. CLOVER'S POSITION.

Circuit Attorney Clover has not been in the Grand-jury room since the present Grandjury was impaneled and says that he has had nothing whatever to do with their work. Had he been requested to give them his advice or assistance in anyway, he would have done so, but under the circumstances—the likelihood of his office being investigated—he decided not to go near them unless called for. Mr. Zachritz represented him in the Grandjury room and was always at their service. In regard to the power of the Grandjury room and was always at their service. In regard to the power of the Grandjury room and was always at their service. In court, Mr. Clover said that no indictment could be presented under such circumstances. At least nine must agree at the hinal action in the matter. It was entirely immaterial how many of the jurors had at some previous time been in favor of it if four of them now opposed it. He knew of no officer of the court or of any one presumed to be posted on the matter who took a different position.

Mr. Zachritz takes the same ground and so advised the Grand-jury.

The proceedings in the jury room this morn-advised the Grand-jury.

IN THE JURY ROOM.

The proceedings in the jury room this morning explain the statement of Juryman Ingalls that the four were making an effort to impress the public with the idea that the eight were refusing to take up business. Upon convening Juryman Blossom, who during the sessions had been acting as chairman pro tem., took the foreman's seat, and said that Mr. Lucas had asked him last night to preside in his absence, as the illness of a child would prevent him from attending the session the next morning. Mr. Blossom said he hoped the Grand-jury would proceed to business, as there were witnesses outside waiting to be examined.

The eight knew this statement was made in error. They had just come in from the anteroom and had left outside only the several reporters and Deputy Sheriff Finney. A reporter of the Post-Disparch was in the anteroom while the short session was held and knows that there was not a single witness in the room. Besides, when the eight determined to present their remonstrance to Judge Normile. Assistant Circuit Attorney Zachritz came into the anteroom, and discharged all the witnesses in the only case then pending before the Grand-jury, the St. Louis Public Stock Exchange investigation.

Misunderstanding this, and ignoring the acting foreman's suggestion, which they believed to be insincere, the eight held to their original Intention of transacting no business till the missing indictment was returned. One of them moved to adjourn till to-morrow, when the foreman could sit with them. Acting Chairman Blossom said, the roll must be called on that. The vote was eight to three for adjournment.

three for adjournment.

FOREMAN LUCAS' ABSENCE.

Juryman Blossom said, after he came out of the jury-room upon the first adjournment. 'I understand that Mr. Lucas has a very sick child. I saw him yesterday, and he told me that he was going home to see about it.''

Members of the Mercantile Club, who were there last night, say that Foremon Lucas and ir. Blossom were together at the club til late in the evening.

"Yes, I did vote for the — indictment," said Juror Heman this morning, "but I changed my mind afterwards, and at the time the vote was taken I said that I thought I was doing wrong in voting to indict.
"But you did vote for the indictment," said Juror Ingalls, standing by, "and you newspaper folks must not think that an indictment was not found. It was found, a true bill. It was drawn up and Mr. Lucas signed it. Mr. Heman voted for it and he that so, Mr. Heman?" had stated it.

"What caused you to change your mind in regard to —'s guilt?" was asked of Mr.

"Well, I got to thinking over it and came to the conclusion that I had done him an justice.''
'Had he been to see you in the mean "Had he been to see you in the meantime?"

'No, sir. I have never seen him. I never met him and wouldn't know him if I were to run across him to day. I am in no way interested in him or his affairs.'

Asked whether he and Messrs, Lucas, Blossom and Scullin were going to reply to the communication of the other eight jurors, Mr. Heman said that he was not certain about that. They had not prepared a reply yesterday at their meeting after the adjournment of the Grand-jury for the reason that they did not have the communication. "They took it away with them," said Mr. Heman, 'which they had no right to do. True, they to it without having it before us."

ZACHRYZ AND LUCAS.

had read it to us, but we couldn't wentreply to it without having it before us."

ACHRITZ AND LUCAS.

Mr. Lucas put in an appearance about 10:45 o'clock and went straight to the Grand Jury room. He stated to Mr. Finney, the clerk, that his child had been so sick that he was compelled to be at home, or he would have been on hand at 100'clock.

The three gentiemen with Mr. Zachritz were sent for and a private conference took place with closed doors in the Grand-jury room. Mr. Zachritz stated that the object of the meeting was to prepare a document or report to be made by these four gentlemen in answer to that presented to Judge Normile yesterday. What the contents of the document would be, Mr. Zachritz stated he did not know, and that the gentlemen would not give it for publication.

Foreman Lucas was met on the steps as he was ascending to the third story to call the conference. He was asked if he would not make some statement with reference to his action in withholding the indictment in the lottery case.

"No. sir." he repiled rather sharply, "I action in withholding the indictment in the lottery case.

"No, sir," he replied rather sharply, "I have no statement whatever to make, and will answer no questions on the subject." It may later become necessary for him to withdraw from this position, if some of the not improbable legal proceedings are inaugurated before this matter is over with.

MR. ZACHRITZ AND THE EIGHT. magurated before this matter is over with.

MR. ZACHRITZ AND THE EIGHT.

Speaking to a group of jurors this morning, before the Grand-jury began its session, Juryman Becker said: "It has been the custom for Grand-juries to pass a resolution eulogizing the Assistant Circuit Attorney, and thanking him for scientious work. Mr. Zachritz will not get that kind of an indorsment from this Grand jury, he may depend on t.' JURYMAN INGALLS INDIGNANT. JURYMAN INGALLS INDIGNANT.

Mr. F. H. Ingalls said: "I can't see how I can very well give you any further information than that which was published in yesterday's Post-Disparch. We have, in my opinion, accomplished very little as a Grandjury looking to the real interests of the city. The indictments for burglary, larceny, assault and the like, which have been returned, are more cordinary routine work for any sault and the like, which have been returned, are mere ordinary routine work for any Grand-jury. But we had some special matters to come up. Matters which affected the city's interests most vitally, and it seems, while eight of us are willing and anxious to go into these matters, the other gentlemen on the jury think otherwise.

"Now one gentleman has expressed himself to the effect that he will be d—d if he sits with that body longer than Friday next. He says he has other business matters to attend to, and he is tired. Well, I presume some of the rest of us are business men also, and have other duties to perform, but as a conscientious citizen, I think our first duty is to the city.

scientious citizen, I think our inst duty is to the city.

"We had a course mapped out for us by the last Grand-jury, but from the present outlook I think we shall have to adjourn without accomplishing anything. I can say nothing of the conduct of the jurors in the jury-room, but I certainly think the manner in which Mir. Blossom laughed in open court, at our discomflure, was to say the least unbecoming."

but I certainly that the hard of the country at our discomfiture, was to say the least unbecoming."

JURYMAN BLOSSOM'S POSITION.

Mr. Howard A. Blossom said before the Grand-Jury met to-day: "I have not a thing to say. That document, or whatever it was that was presented to the court, I don't know anything about. I am on the Grand-Jury to do my duty. The statute provides me with counsel. I am not to blame for the counsel; I am not to blame for the statute. I have nothing to say for publication. What I have to say will be said at the proper time and in the proper place, and it will be to the point."

GRAND-JUROE BECKER'S OPINION.

Mr. Emile Becker said: "I do not wish to be quoted as saying anything in this matter. The action taken by the eight of us yesterday was; in our minds perfectly justifiable. I do not think it should be termed mutinous, as some of the papers have it, as weare in the majority. I certainly want to do my duty to the city as a grand-juror, but with our present organization I do not see how we can accomplish very much "MR. GATEWOOD COMPLAINS OF OBSTRUCTION.

Mr. Gatewood was seen in his office at the Age of Steel in the Equitable Building. He, too, was averse to talking because he said he did not wish to commit himself on any of the proceedings of the Grand-jury, which were secret. As to the document which had been presented to Judge Normile in open court, he did not know whether it could be considered in the second it best not to give its contents for publication. He would like to have tellowed up the last Grand-jury report, but the complexion of the present body was such that he thought nothing would be accomplished by it.

EXPECT MORE MEN.

Homestrad, Pa., July 28.—The Carnegle Steel Co., Limitec, has not called off its Eastern agents, as reported. General Supt. Potter said they expected more men at once. Three Anarchists under the guise of workmen gained admission to the mill and were secretly distributing literature among the men and trying to make converts, possibly-with the intention of destroying the plant. One of the workmen told Mr. Potter, who immediately ordered the Anarchists put out of the works. That was two days ago, and now the police are hunting the men under the belief that they were implicated in the general plot against the Carnegies by the "reds," which resulted in the wounding of Chairman Frick. The three Anarchists seem to have disappeared, and as they showed the workmen plenty of money, it is presumed went to New York. Deputy sheriffs and constables with warrants are scouring this town this morning looking for rioters and witnesses. Most of the people against whom informations have been made have had intimations and are either in hiding or have temporarily left town. No further arrests have been made so far.

HELD FOR MURDER.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 28 .- Sylvester Critchlow, one of the strikers charged with mur-der on the day of the riot, applied for release on bail to-day but was refused and remanded to jail for trial. At the hearing several witnesses swore that they saw Critchlow load and fire a gun at the barges. and fire a gun at the barges. In retusing ball, Judge Magee said the case was close to murder in the first degree. Hugh O'Donneil's policy all the time was for peace. This man was for war and bloodshed. Critchlow's attorney claims that he will be able to prove that he was not behind the barricade that day.

Wm. Close, another striker, was released on $10,000 bail.

Wm. Close another striker, was released on $10,000 bail.

The police authorities of Pittsburg and and Allegheny say the Anarchists have thrown up their hands and are frightened almost to death. Those was about being Anarchists have shut up and they all pretend to be peaceful, law-abiding citizens. The police are satisfied that there was an organized plot and expect to get at the bottom of it in a few days. The matter has been taken up by the police authorities all over the United States and there is not a prominent Anarchist that could not be arrested on an hour's notice. Finsier and Pirnock, the suspects arrested yesterday, were discharged, there being no evidence that they were in any way connected with Bauer or Bergman.

Mr. Frick's condition continues entirely satisfactory and his rapid recovery now seems certain.

SUGGESTED ARBITRATION. IRON MANUFACTORS MAKE A PROPOSITION TO

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 28 .- The conference committees of the Iron Manufacturers and the Amalgamated Association spent eight and one-half hours in another fruitless atwage scale. The meeting was rendered retration as a means to bring the two sides together. The proposition came from the manufacturers' side and in this form:
That the men should resume work at last year's scale pending an adjustment of the new scale by a Board of Arbitrators.
The workers' committee immediately retired to one end of the conference hall and discussed it for over half an hour. No definite reply was returned and no determination had been arrived at when the meeting adjourned.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 28.-Rev. Mrs. Deyo

Her work here is jointly with Rev. J. L. Andrews, a Universalist minister of Ailegheny. The two called on Secretary Lovejoy of the Carnegle Co., explained their mission and gave him a list of rules employed in the settlement of the difficulty between the Reading Railroad and its employes, saying they would pertinently fit the trouble. The rules are called the "Bill ift the frouble. The rules are caned the book signification of Rights."

b'r. Lovejoy told Rev. Mrs. Deyo that his company had nothing to arbitrate. The lady went to Homestead last evening and was courteously received by Hugh O'Donnell, who told her he wanted the fight ended and was in favor of a conference. Mrs. Deyo will call on Chairman Frick this effernoon. She will ask the aid of Bishop Phelan and the Pretestant clergy in her work. A public meeting will probably be called in this city.

THE LEADER OF THE HOMESTEAD MILL WORK ERS GOES EAST AGAIN. HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 28.-Hugh O'Donnell has left Homestead quietly and is probably on his way East again. Mrs. O'Donnell was quite nervous this morning and said that her husband was going away on private business It is not known here what the labor leader's husband was going away on private business. It is not known here what the labor leader's mission is. The members of the Advisory committee have little to say concerning the rosy reports of mill work, except that it is very easy to impress false statements as facts upon persons not acquainted with the subject. A fact which is being brought to the notice of the committee by many of the earnest fighters is the increased number of absent workmen. At the beginning of the fight a resolution was adopted that any man who left Homestead without leave would not be allowed to work in the mill after the fight was over. For three weeks after the 28th of June very few persons left town, and they all were excused, yet during the last week hundreds have gone away and as a result watchruiness has been most decidedly impaired.

A week ago not a stranger entered the mill but was noted. Yesterday 150 went in, and few knew of it until informed by the papers. This morning two strangers with valises got off the train at Homestead and inquired the way to the steel works. Some townsmen told them, but no one asked why they wanted to go to the plant. This could not have happened last week. The militia is largely responsible for this seeming apathy, as the men have come to recognize as long as men remain in the works it is impossible to argua with them and induce them to leave. So no necessity exists for such vigilance as before. Camp Black was looking rather dreary this morning. Several regiments have gone and others are breaking camp. Maj. Gen. Snowden and staff leave this afternoon. In an interview the commanding officers said: "The troops have behaved admirably, the discipline being almost perfect. I am well satisfied with the sbowing. It is deplorable indeed that a condition exists which necessitates the calling of the State militia to suppress troubles arising out of wage disputes. Some other means of settling these troubles should be arrived at."

offense and illegal. One of these officers said to-day:

"The proceeding was wrong and illegal. There can be no possible question about that. There are many mistakes made. To begin with, the man was not guilty of treason. He was guilty of insnbordination and his case demanded immediate punishment.

"It was purely a regimental matter with which the commanding officer of division had nothing to do. But if it had been a case for all consideration he had not the power to order the man dismissed from the service and have the other indignities heaped upon him. The commanding general of the United States Army has not the power to summarily take that course toward the lowest private, no matter how helmous or serious his offense and if the guilt is admitted. Military law is based upon the same principles as civil law. A man can't plead until he comes before the court.

A man can't plead until he comes before the court.

"The regulations expressly provide that if a man commits an offense the punishment for which is a dishonorable discharge from the service, this punishment can be inflicted by a general court-martial only, and the man must give the accused the charges and ten days' notice. A drumhead court martial, such as was had in this matter, had no authority. Its act and the act of Gen. Snowden were purely lilegal. They can be made to suffer."

THE WOUNDED MAN SLEEPS WELL AND IS DOING WELL-WATCHED BY POLICE. PITTSBURG, Pa., July 28.—The morning bulletin issued by the surgeon in attendance upon Mr. H. C. THE MOLLICK ARREST.

Long Branch, N. J., July 28.—Police Captain Layton has been arrested for per-mitting Chief O'Mara of Pittsburg to remove Anarchist Mollick, Berkman's suppos sistant, without requisition papers. Layton is subject to $1,000 fine and imprisonment. It is understood that Chief Justice Beasley expressed the opinion that both Capt. Layton and Chief O'Mara violated the law in taking Mollick out of the State in the manner they did and both are threatened with prosecution.

WHAT THE LEADING APOSTLE OF ANABOUT

SAYS OF THE PITTSBURG TRAGEDY. NEW YORK, July 28 .- The Freiheit, the offici organ of the Anarchists, edited by the high priest of anarchy, John Most, came out yesterday with a four-column article on the situation at Homestead and the shooting of Frick. Most admits the authorship of the article. In its issue the week before he denounced the Homestead strikers for having driven three o his agents out of town ard for attempting duck them in the pond.
Yesterday's article was headed, "Frickism." for attempting Yesterday's article was headed, "Frickism."

It contains the following:

Down with Frick. We demand that he be arrested, tried and convicted of murder. He is the meaness man in the nineteenth century. A man like him has no right to exist. Frick is the personincation of everything that is mean and his hatred a directed against organized labor. In the history of the working classes, there has prever been a greater wested than this capitalistic magnate, as he has grown up from the working class and has always shown himself egainst the working class. He converts the sweat of the workingman into gold, which he shower into the pecket of the capitalists. The workingmen are only a mass to this wereth, who think he can suck the blood out of them as he likes.

Most then goes on to say that Frick regards organized labor, whether revolutionary or not, as the slaves of hell. She is aged 40 years, and is a pleasant-faced woman.

s is the first appearance of the monster in this role. Oh, no, the wretch has always kept his workingmen to a starvation point as a leach, sucking the blood from them." The article continues:

For instance, at the strike in the coal regions where Frick accumulated his twenty millions, he employed stalwart men to work for 75 couts to $1 at day. They asked for an increase of 25 cents a day, and Frick shoved them aside as if they were after his life. They went on a strike and the capitalists turned them out of their homes and gave them the liberty of the birds. In their burning hunger for libenselves, wives and children they had a parade and a committee beseched Frick for relief. Then he called the Pinkertons, and in the battle cloven workingmen were killed and sixty wounded. Frick is just the man for the capitalists. His hands are stained with the blood of those killed on the 6th of July. He sent a gang of Pinkertons to Homestead to murder the workingmen by the wholesale. This person, who is tunworthy of the name of man, was sightly show and stabled by the country of the way at the same of the country to show this "cuckoo" the why and slightly show the check this "cuckoo" the why and slightly show the same of the country to show this "cuckoo" the why and slightly show the filled on the spot by the clerks in Frick" office had not Frick interfered. It has been intimated that there has been an Anarchists conspirator. They are saying that Anarchists should be arrested, seat to prison and electroused. That's

Trades and Labor Union.

The Trades and Labor Union met last evening at Labor headquarters. The committee appointed by the mass meeting held at Central Turner Hall last Sunday in aid of the central Turner Hall last Sunday in aid of the striking mill men asked the Trades and Labor Union to concur in the appointment of a "Strike Board," to consist of one delegate from each union. The scheme was rejected after a lengthy debate. The Cooks and Rastry Cooks' Protective Association asked that an association string itself the "Epicurian College," and claiming to be a union organization be classified as a "scab" association. The request was granted. The boy cott on the Commercial Hotel was raised and it was stated that the Grand Central had signed the scale of union wages. A communication from Fresident Samuel Gompers asking for the appointment of a day for the delivery of an address was filed. Mr. A. S. Leitch, Organizer of the American Federation of Labor, invited the delivers of the American Federation of Labor, invited the delivers of the American Federation of Labor, invited the delivers to revoke Mr. Leitch's commission was adopted. The tin, sheet-iron and cornice workers at the Ahheuser-Busch brewery reported that they had not been granted union hours.

ANXIOUS SHORTS.

Desperate Efforts to Escape From Equeeze on July Wheat. There was a good deal of excitement on the oor of the Merchants' Exchange this morning in reference to an agree-ment that was circulated among wheat dealers, asking them to agree to alter their rules in regard to time contracts on the last day of the moath. The rule adopted on March 28, is as follows:

delivery shall be served upon the buyer or seller by or before 11:30 o'clock a. m. of the day of proposed delivery, and shall be in the following form.

The shorts endewored to secure a temporary abrogation of this rule by unanimous consent. The object of this move was to give them the advantage of one day's receipts. At present notice of delivery must be served before 11:30, and at 11:30 the call opens. Hence notices must be served before call. In the present condition of the market, when there has been a considerable advance, the difference of one day's receipts may be of great importance to the shorts. The leaders in asking signatures were R. M. Hubbard and John T. Milliken. They succeeded in obtaining nearly all the signatures of those who were short, but struck a snag when they come to longs. The latter argued that whenever there was a squeeze the shorts took refuge behind the corner rule. Now when a rule, carefully considered, appeared to be likely to operate against the shorts, they asked an abrogation. The rule cannot be suspended except by unanimous consent and this consent cannot be obtained. Some of the parties who are urging this scheme state that they did so merely to satisfy themselves what the intentions of the longs were. If an inclination was shown to accept the proposed agreement, it would indicate the longs did not contemplate a corner, but if a refusal was given, the shorts would have to face a squeeze. The shorts have long been warned that a combination controlled July wheat, and very little sympathy is felt by the trade for them in their tardy efforts to get out. This combination is supposed to be the United Elevator Co., which fact led to wheat, and very little sympathy is felt by the trade for them in their tardy efforts to get out. This combination is supposed to be the United Elevator Co., which fact led to the charges that the elevators had refused to unload wheat.

Before the close of business hours on the Merchants' Exchange it was found that there was little likelihood of sufficient signatures being obtained to this agreement, and a petition to the Board of Directors was circulated by John T. Milliken, asking that on the last day of July the wheat in cars that had been inspected as No. 2 be declared regular. This petition received numerous signatures, but the longs regarded it with great hilarity. The stated that the Board of Directors had power to declare regular or irregular any elevator, but that they had under the rules no authority to declare regular wheat in cars. The petition will be presented to-morrow, but the general opinion is that the board will take no action upon it, holding that they have no jurisdiction. Some of the shorts are of the opinion that they can give notice of delivery until the close of banking hours, any rules of the Merchants' Exchange to the contracts were made, however, specifly 11:30 as the latest hour at which notice can be given, and it is stated that by entering into this agreement common law rights were waived. The grain is in the cars, but owing to the insufficiency of switching and track facilities cannot be placed in the elevators in time for the July delivery; and the general consensus of cyninon is that the shorts must stand a severe squeeze.

Father Coffey After Them for Their Fail ure to Attend Communion. The session of St. John's Council, C. K. of A. to be held in St. John's School Hall, Sixteenth and Chestnut streets, this even probate to-day, leaves to each of his surviving children $10. The rest of the estate is
the property to be sold at her death and divided equally among his children, including his children by his first wife. The will sets forth that if the testator be in business at the time of his death, the business shall be wound up as soon as possible. Should his wife marry again the testator directs that all the property shall be sold and one-third the Ancient Order, and a lively session may be counted upon.

Criminal Court Trials. Three trials took place, in the Criminal the same time. Cella Hale, the colored woman who cut officer Martin Fanning, was given four years in the Penitentiary ann John Johnson, also colored, three years for burglarizing Heinson's hardware store. Johnson had an opportunity to plead guilty to larceny and take two years eyen after it was aimost certain that the jury would find him guilty of burglary, the lowest punishment for which is three years, but he declined the offer and then had one year added to his punishment. Lottle Davidson. clined the offer and then had one year added to his punishment. Lottle Davidson, the Hale woman's partner in the cutting of Officer Fanning, pleaded guilty some time ago, and was let off with two years. Both Mrs. Hale and Johnson were sentenced to-day. The third jury tried Andrew Monroe, a negro, on the charge of breaking into a railroad car. This also was a client of Attorney Furling, but this time there was an acquittal.

George Williams pleaded guilty to burglary and was given three years. John Fahey was sentenced to one year in the Work-house on a piea of guilty to petit larceny and Joe white thirty days in the Work-house for cutting a man. The case of John Hughes was nolle pros'd.

Twenty Oil Tanks Started Blazing Lightning. PITTSBURG, Pa., July 28 .- During the prevalence of a thunder storm which swept over the southwestern oil fields yesterday afternoon, lightning struck tank No. 17 of the Southwest Pennsylvania Pipe Line Co., six miles from Washington. The tank contained 27,000 barrels of oil, and when it burst 27,000 barreis of oil, and when it burst the burning fluid spread to twenty tanks in the vicinity and soon all were after. The confingration was still raging at 10 o'clock this morning, notwithstanding the efforts of 900 men who have been fighting it since yesterday afternoon. The heat is so intense that trains could not approach within an eighth of a mile of the scene, and passengers on the Washington branch of the Pan Handle Railway were unable to reach their destinations last night. The loss is not known, but will be very heavy.

A PAIR BREEZE. ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 28 .- The heat here shows no signs of abating. At 8 o'clock this morning the temperature was 81, the highest of the week for that hour. The humidity was also higher. A fair breeze, however, makes the heat bearable.

FORTY-FIVE PER CENT RETURNED.

Subscribers to the Mississippi River Improvement Fund Get Their Money Back. A meeting of the Mississippi River Improvment Committee of the Merchants' Exchange was held this afternoon in the Direc called the meeting to order, and stated the object of the gathering. The bill for a separate appropriation for the improvement of the river, Mr. Bernheimer said, had not been passed, but an appropriation of $4,000,000, covering four years, had been passed, which was a practical victory. In view of this Mr. Bernheimer advised that the unexpended balance of the amount contributed by citizens to advance the cause be refunded. A vote was taken and it was ordered that this be done. George H. Morgan, Treasurer of the committee, was therefore ordered to return to contributors $45 per cent of their subscriptions. Such a result is almost unprecedented. The amount subscribed was $3,255, of which a little over one-half has been expended.

Those badly injured were: BILL SMALL, single, residence at Midland, FRANK DAVIS, single, Juniata, cut over the The mill is a total wreck. The killed were terribly mutilated.

CASUALTIES. OHN ASSERRY GROUND TO PIECES IN A SHINGLE

Ark., July 28.-This morning at 2 o'clock John Asberry was killed at Price's shingle mill, six miles east of this place. Young Asberry was at work at the mill, and during the night went to the main driving belt and laid down to sleep on the unde ing belt and laid down to sleep on the under part of the belt, and when the night watchman started the machinery up to clean it, not knowing the young man was there, he was thrown under the pulley and grinding the body to a pulp. Asberry was single and lived at Marmaduke, Ark. The Coroner left here this morning for the scene of the accident.

COLLIDING TRAINS. HOLLY, Mich., July 28.—A collison between two freight trains occurred at an early hour this morning on the Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee road two miles from here. Both engines and thirty cars were completely wrecked and five car loads of cattle, sheep and hogs were killed. Brakeman Lachlan of Holly was severely injured by jumping. The rest of the crews jumped safely.

PERSONAN PATALLY INJURED PITTSBURG, Pa., July 28 .- T. G. Evans & Co.'s china and glassware establishment, on the corner of Third avenue and Market street, was destroyed by fire at noon. While on the way to the fire a hose carriage collided with a wagon and three firemen were thrown out and seriously hurt. Matthew Mason, the driver, it is feared, is fatally injured.

BOTH LEGS CUT OFF. LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 28.-Mrs, H. Clark. a widow 61 years of age, in attempting to cross the railroad track at the Union Depot this morning, was run over by a switch en-gine, the wheels cutting off both legs be-tween the thigh and hips.

DIED FROM A BER'S STING. HILLSBORO, Ill., July 28.—Mrs. Robert Mor-rell, an old lady living ten miles north of Hillsboro, was this forenoon stung on the back of the neck by a bee and died from the effects in thirty minutes. Mrs. Morrell had been in the best of health previous to the

THE DEADLY BOILER FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., July 28. - The boiler of John Tunstill's steam mill at Goshen, this county, exploded yesterday, badly damaging the mill and severely scalding his son, CASUALTY BRIEFS.

Dan Kimble of Carthage was killed in a nine yesterday while retimbering a drift. Sixteen persons were poisoned yesterday at Canton, Ill., by drinking buttermik that had been left in the sun for several hours in a tin can. Robert Winson, one of the number, is not expected to live. By the explosion of a sawmill near Stanley, I. T., yesterday, the engineer, Lewis Hardin, and John Brown were killed and John Blueball, Jack Roller, T. D. Potter and Joe Hodenwere dangerously wounded.

WILL BE STILL COOLER.

Further Fall in the Temperature Predicted by the Signal Service.

The prognostications of the signal service oler weather to-day proved to be rect, although the fall in temperature was not so great as had been anticipated. The progress of the cool wave as it advanced to the southwest was slower than had been calculated upon and only its border reached St. Louis this morning. By to-morrow a very decided fall in reached St. Louis this morning. By to-morrow a very decided fall in the thermometer is looked for, and rain is expected to-night. At 7 o'clock this morning rain was failing in Kansas City, and the storm is slowly advancing across the State. To the west there is no sign of high temperature, and the cool speli will certainly last until Saturday, probably longer. Unless a new hot area develops soon, behind the advancing cool wave, a long spell of cool weather is likely to succeed the heated term. There were two cases of sunstroke at the City Dispensary yesterday. Gus Meler, living at 1780 lowar avenue, was overcome by the heat in front of the Postoffice about 11:45 a. m. When taken to the Dispensary he was in a very bad condition and it was thought he could not be saved. Dr. Fitzpatrick worked on him for an hour and a half, when he recovered sufficiently to be sent to the City Hospital.

Catharine smith, living at 545 Manchester road, was brought in about 1:15 o'clock. She had been overcome in an alley between Tenth and Eleventh streets, near Market. After twenty minutes work on her she was sent to the City Hospital.

FATHER PHELAN'S WARROW ESCAPE

His Editorial Joke Put Him in Danger of Excommunication.

Mill.

Perhaps not one of the many friends and acquaintences of Rev. D. S. Phelan, editor of the Western Watchman, is aware that the well-known editor has narrowly escaped suspension from his sacerdotal functions and excommunication from the Cathellic Church. The alleged offense was that he had stated in his paper that the decision of the Cardinals at Rome having charge of the school question could be bought for the pairty sum of a cents. The Cardinals who sat in Judgment upon this momentous question of the Faribault School system were the most eminent in the Sacred College and the charge which father Phelan was alleged to have made against them would be indeed a heinous offense for the editor. It all came about in this way:

the charge which fatter Pheian was aleged to have made against them would be indeed a heinous offense for the editor. It all came about in this way:

About the time that the Catholic world was on the edge of nervous prestration from over anxiety to know what the Cardinals had decreed, father Pheian wrote an editorial squib to the effect that if those curious to know the decision would hold themselves for fifteen days they could get it for 5 cents. This appeared in print two months and a half ago, and was father Pheian's clever manner of saying that if the curious would wait until the foreign correspondence of the Watchman would arrive, they could assuage their anxiety by investing 5 cents in the issue of the Watchman following. But some one in this city interpreted father Pheian's squib to mean that the cardinals could be bribed with 5 cents, and an Italian translation of the paragraph with this erroneous meaning given it was sent to Rome. The translation was duly laid before the Cardinals, who pass upon all cases of suspension and ex-communication. They took the matter very seriously and referred it to the Pope, who reserved action until he had defiberated fully. About this time Archishop about the offensive paragraph and asked an explanation. The metropolitan of St. Paul showed the Pope the true meaning of Father Phelan's words and at the last moment the thunders of Rome were withheld from the devoted head of Father Phelan.

Baine in Kansas. KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 28 .- A heavy rain fell here this morning, beginning about 6 o'clock, and at noon it is still falling in showers. Reports from all of the State of Kansas indicate a general rain during the night and morning. The fall in Central and Kastern Kansas seems to be heaviest. Over an inch is reported from Emporia and along the Sants Fe Line and branches. Southern and Southeastern Kansas have had good showers and a heavy rain fell in Northern Kansas about Concordia. Light rains are reported in the western part of the State, except in a few localities; the rain has been of inestimable benefit, assuring a big corn crop. It came just in time, and practically places the crop beyond the danger of being damaged by the hot winds. He joined the Forty-second Highlanders (tne Black Watch) in 1865, and in 1873 he went to the Ashantee war, commanding at first a company of Russell's native regiment from the Frah to Adansi. Then he became a staff officer with Col. (now Gen.) Sir John McLeod, who was in command of the Forty-second, and also of the advance column of the British army. Lieut. Wauchope, twice wounded, was mentioned in dispatches for his gallantry and had to be invalided home. He received the medal and two clasps. In 182 he was with his regiment in Egypt, and fought at the battle of Tel-el-Rebir. He received the British medal and clasp and the Khedive's bronze star, and was shortly afterward made a companion of St. Michael and St. George. In 1884 he was Quartermaster-General of the army under Sir Gerald Graham, and was again severely wounded at the battle of El Teb. He was once more mentioned in the dispatches and promoted to Bravet Lieutenant-Colonel for his services. He regioned his regiment on his recovery and served with it on the Nile expedition of 1885 and the river column under Maj. Gen. Earle. At the engagement of Kerbekan he was dangerously wounded and had again to be invalided home. For his Egyptian services he was made a companion of the Bath, and in 1885 received his full colonelcy. In addition to his military achievements Col. Wauchope served as civil commissioner of the Island of Cyprus when it was transferred to the British, and was the British delegate for the Sultan's land inquiry there. He is the only son of the late Andrew Wauchope of Niddrie Mareschall. A Boycott That Darkens the Prospects of a Pair in Their Honeymoon.

a Pair in Their Honeymoon.

From the Indianapolis Journal.

A short time ago there was a wedding in spiritualistic circles, a handsome young lady, who is credited with the possession of rare mediumistic powers, being united to the happy man whom she preferred among a score or more of admirers. Fortunately, or unfortunately, all of these admirers are not sojourners in these low grounds of sorrow. Some of them are in that mysterious land from which most persons believe there is no return ticket. Of course no Spiritist accepts the Prince of Denmark's dogma on this point, and the young lady, now a bride, has heretofore maintained that her admirers "over there" were a great deal more useful to her than those who remained on this shore of time, for the reason that her best "controls" were these same spirit lovers.

Since her marriage a singular condition of affairs has come about. The earthly admirers have accepted the situation, most of them even attended the wedding and endured if they did not approve her choice. With the lovers on the beautiful shore the young wife's friends say it is different. They are angry and appear to have piaced a spiritual boycott upon her. She has not received a single communication from any one of these departed lovers since her marriage, and worse than that they have formed a guard around her, and allow no other spirits to communicate with her. As the marriage was one of pure love, wholly without mercenary consideration on the young lady's part, at least, and the limited salary of the husband was to have been aided by the professional sarnings of the wife, the spirit boycott is a serious matter to these worthy young people. It has already operated to cut short their wedding for themselves, as they intended, they have been compelled to board with mother.

How long this melicious boycott may be kept up is one of those things that no one can determine. The attempt to call elderly and disinterested spirits as a Roard of Arbitratration has thus far been frustrated by the departed lovers, who SEDALIA. July 28 .- Two trains from Sedalia, regular and a special, left for St. Louis it midnight last night with several hundred Republicans, tired, hoarse, but intensely nthusiastic, on board. They were the St. Louis contingent of the grand Republican at Sedalia yesterday. On the special for Governor chuarte, Secretary L. M. At the club-rooms a large gathering of newspaper men and many ladles were waiting, with the Third Regiment Band of Kansas City furnishing music. As the Sixteenth Ward Club band came up Ohlo street playing "Ta-ra-ra," the Third Regiment band from the club windows above joined in, and to this inspiring air Maj. Warner entered. Then the Kansas City Glee Club and the Sedalia Glee Club sang several "Come-all-ye's" after which Maj. Warner was introduced and spoke for about ten minutes. His remarks were a very graceful tribute to the power of the press as "the only orator that reaches all the people," and were warmly received. An informal reception followed, during which cheers were given for Maj. Warner, Richard Bartholdt, Congressional nominee from the Tenth District, who was present, and for City Collector Ziegenhein, whom Maj. Warner described as the "biggest and most patriotic native from Missouri present."

The reception was then ended by Maj.

The reception was then ended by Maj. Warner having to witness the parade of the Sedalia Flambeau Club and to hear the speaking in front of the Court-house.

The speaker last night were ex-Congressman Horr of Michigan, Judge Shirk, Mr. Hastein, the Republican candidate for Congress in the Seventh District, and others. At the close of the speaking the hegira of Republicans from Sedalia began, and outgoing specials and regular trains were crowded. Maj. Warner was escorted to the St. Louis special by a band and several hundred faithful Republicans. When his train pulled out the great Republican raily was ended.

Maj. Wm. Warner, the Republican nomilivered a lengthy and able address at Sedawarmed up to his subject early in the speech vest and spoke in his shirt sleeves. The important parts of the speec's were as follows:

In his speech to the employes of the Missouri Pacific car shops Maj. Warner talked the straightest of organized labor talk. He was driven to the corner of Third and Engineers treets directly after the close of his three hours' speech opening the campaign. There 300 employes of the car shops a waited him and gave him an enthusiastic reception. Then from his carriage the Republican candidate for Governor talked for twenty minutes on tae beauties of arbitation between employer and employe in the settlement of all disputes between labor and capital, also on the rights of organized labor, the infamy of the Pinkerton system, the advantages and desirability of the industrial system of profit-sharing as a preventive of all labor troubles in the future, and on other topics now foremost in labor circles owing to the Homestead war.

RECORDERS OF VOTERS.

There is one other among the many appointments to be made by the Governor, to which I desire to call attention, an appointment directly affecting every election held in our cities, and indirectly influencing the result of every election held in the State. I refer to the Recorder of Voters. This officer is clothed with extraordinary powers. It is made his duty as far as human power can control it, to see that none but those entitled to the elective franchise shall vete. To secure this result it becomes necessary for that official, if honest and competent, to purge the registration list of dead men, non-residents and those who have it-legally gotten their names upon the list. In oding this, if he is honest, he will consult no party boss, nor will he make inquiry as to the politics or concept that man whose name is stricken from the list. Having purged the list of its imperfections, it then becomes his duty in our cities to appoint judges and clerks of election.

is $9 and 1890 the appropriation for the Governor's office as "contingent expenses" was $2,000. For the next two years this was increased to $4,000. If we are to have style we must pay for it.

The appropriation in 1891 and 1892 for the costs paid by the State in criminal cases amounted to the enormous sum of $550,000. This sum, great as it is, does not more than half feel the tale. From the best estimates I am able to obtain, the amount of criminal costs paid by the State is more than equaled by the aggregate amount each that the estimate given of the costs in criminal cases paid by the counties is an under, rather than an over estimate. In the country of Jackson alone the amount paid in 1890 and 1891 was over $100,000.

This is the field in which the "fee grabber" revels. It is the field in which retreachment and reform its demanded. This retreachment and reform will never come until there is a "general house-cleaning" in the political management of our State and local affairs. There must be a shaking up of the orly bones of the dominant party. This house-cleaning, this shaking up, is demanded in the interest of the tax of criminal costs, I desire to call your attention to the fact that for the years 1891 and 1892 an appropriation for the payment of officers, guards and other employes of the State Penitentiary was $175,000; while for the years 1891 and 1892 the appropriation was but $80,000. It is the favorite rouge for place hunters who have failed elsewhere.

Numerous cases similar to those stated could be given illustrating the false pretenses of the dominant party's claim to economical administration. It is therefore evident that whatever of reduction in the State debt has been made, that it snot the result of economy in expenditure of the people's money by their servants. Its reduction was connuenced under the laws adopted prior to 1870. Attention here is called the fact has after the party that enacted these laws and increased to $21,768,000.

On Jan. 1, 1875, the State debt was but $20,000 easy than it dominant party in its attempt to prevent nomination by voters of new parties in the way sanotioned by the wisdom of the past, unless such voters belonged to a party that "shall have cast at least 3

The justice of this proposition is self-evident to all rightthinking men. The statute denying this right should be repealed at the earliest possible day, as being violative of the rights of the citizen and contrary to the genius of our institutions.

The statement that in lester and spirit this statute

BOOMERANG LOGIC.

Although President Harrison did not actually handle the Winchesters with which Pinkertons and Homestead men were shot, noruse the revolver and knife upon Frick, nor apply the thumb-rack and razor to Private lams, he is, according to the reasoning of his own organs, responsible for all of this violence and villainy and for whatever else of a similar kind may arise from the unfortunate situ-

Under the Harrison administration the Republican policy of protection, which robs the people to enrich the plutocrats, reached its highest limit in the McKinley bill. The President signed this bill and made it a law. In the McKinley law the tariff on steel billets was reduced and changed from an ad valorem to a specific tax. Steel billets were the product of the Carnegie mills upon which the scale of vages was based and the reduction of the sariff upon it gave Frick the excuse for atempting to reduce wages.

The workingmen discovered the trick that had been played upon them and realzed through the operation of the law that the alleged protection of labor was a sham. They refused to sign the new scale, Frick stroduced the Pinkertons with riotous results, the militia was called out. Prick was shot and stabbed by an Anarchist crank and lams was tortured and shaved by a cranky militia Colonel.

According to the logic of his own organs Harrison did it all with his own little pen. the Republican organization, whose bosses His approval of the McKinley bill plainly renders him responsible for all the ills that have flowed from the dispute between the Carnegie corporation and its employes.

We are not responsible for this logic. It is the logic of the plutocratic organs which contend that the Homestead men are the Anarchistic authors of all the acts of violence arising from the situation at Homestead, because they refused to accept at once the wages offered by Frick. It must be admitted, however, that the reasoning which makes President Harrison s rioter, Anarchist, murderer and asinine military autocrat is based upon better premises than the other conclusion.

DODGING THE ISSUE.

The newspapers which are aiding Carnegie's campaign against organized labor are finding out one thing, and that is that the treatment received by Private Iams "is rousing indignation."

It is only since learning this that they have brought themselves to the point of uttering a mild protest against the outrage, and even now are endeavoring to pervert the facts. It is asserted that Iams was punished for proposing three cheers for Bergman. This is not true. He was punished for expressing his pleasure at the attempted assassination, and then refusing to retract. The punishment rested expressly upon this ground alone.

The disastrous effect of their prohibition policy has driven them to drop it this year and place at the head of their electoral ticket one of the few anti-Prohibitionists who has clung to the party. But the mass of anti-Prohibitionists who have deserted the Republicans will hardly trust a conversion manilestly influenced by a motive of party interest at a critical time, while the inconsistent course of the party has alienated the Prohibitionists, who have been its stanchest supporters. It has, therefore, no appeal to make to the voters except that of party fealty, which involves the support of a national policy distasteful to the great majority of Iowans. The party has nothing to depend upon for sucpess except political habit, and its prospect is gloomy.

THE Democracy of Missouri has occa signally been the victim of machin politics, but no Republican in the State an point the finger of scorn at it. "To say with one hand the power of the government on the property of the citizen, and with the other hand bestow it upon fa vored individuals to aid private enter prises and build up private fortunes, is nonthe less robbery because it is do forms of law and is called taxation.

"It is a decree under legislative forms."
"Nor is it taxation."
"Taxes are burdens or charges imposed by the legislature upon persons or property to raise money for public purposes. There can be no lawful tax which is not laid for public purposes.

purposes."

This is the legal opinion of a former member of the Supreme Court of the United States, the late Justice Miller.
He clearly defines the protective tariff as robbery "ander legislative forms," and therefore those who are benefited by the protective tariff are legalized robbers.

A new phase of the question now presents itself.

A new phase of the question now presents itself.

It is this: If N, a legalized robber, donates a part of the profits of the robbery to M, to aid in the building of mission houses for the poor, or in support of churches for the rich, is M a receiver of stolen goods?

Unfortunately Mr. Carnegle is enjoying his vacation and cannot be reached to answer the question, and we will have to be satisfied if some one of the lesser aposties of restrictions will answer the conundrum.

Of all the home talent no one, in the writer's opinion, is more competent to reply to the query than our highly esteemed, generally beloved, and dear brother, the Very Eev. Frederick Godlove Niedringhaus, examember of Congress, member of the order of Special Privileges, and among the irreverent who are unable or unwilling to recognize true greatness known as the tin baron.

Mr. Niedringhaus, as one of the beneficiaries "under legislative forms," can, if he so will, settle the question at once and for all. The revolutionists in Pennsylvania show their wisdom in requesting the Mayor of Pittsburg not to accept the one million of legally stolen dollars donated by a Scotch lord for a public library. They clearly see the danger of receiving stolen goods from an individual who made a private fortune under legislative forms." They do not desire their didiren to become so degraded as to look upon a legalized robber as a public benefactor.

All workmen should follow in the footsteps of the Pennsylvanians and instantly and inhildren to become so degraded as to look pon a legalised robber as a public benefactor. All workmen should follow in the footsteps of the Pennsylvanians and instantly and inlignantly resent all such offerings of other people's money. If those who get their daily bread by working for it would only use the ballot in a proper manuer, robbery in all its forms would cease.

A PLAIN CASE PUT TO HARRISON BY CHAIRMAN CARTER.

The President Must Bend to the New Yorkers or Lose the State-Humiliating Surrender of a Candidate in Distress-People's Party and Laborite Fusion-General Politics.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The work of seconstructing Tom Platt and Warner Miller into good Republicans is going on here to-day. Chairman Carter, after studying the situation in New York, came back here yes-terday and told the President that he must give in to Warner Miller and Tom Platt. Unless they are gotten into line. Carter says New York cannot be carried for the Republi cans. The President concluded that it would be more humiliating to be defeated at the polls than to get down on his knees to Platt and Miller, and has decided to adopt the latterkind of humiliation. Having arrived at this decision he summoned ex-Chairman Clark-son and several New York State politicians here. Clarkson, as Platt's friend, will carry on the negotiations with the President. The terms of Platt are that he shall control the Federal patronage in New York and that Warner Miller is given a place in the Cablest in case of Harrison's re-election. Above all things Secretary Tracy and Steve Elkins are not to intermeddle in New York politics. Clarkson and Carter are with the President this morning arranging the terms of the President's surrender to Platt.

PEOPLE'S PARTY AND LABORITES WILL PUS IN CHICAGO. CHICAGO, Ill., July 28.-The Socialistic Labor party of Chicago has joined hands with the local section of the People's party.

will hold its first County Convention and nominate candidates for Congress, the State Legislature, the Judiciary and the County Board. Many of the most prominent socialistic leaders will attend and take part in the deliberations.

Tuesday evening Socialistic leaders conferred with the County Central Committee of the People's party, with the result that both parties resolved to go into the convention to gether and support the ticket chosen there. It is claimed, as the result of the combination, that the vote of the Knights of Labor party, the Socialistic Labor party, the People's party and some independent labor organizations will be cast as a unit in the fall elections.

ganizations will be cast as a unit in the fall elections.

A comprehensive platform, advocating the most sweeping reforms, will probably be adopted by the convention. Some of its planks, it is said, will favor civil service reform and the adoption of the People's initiative and Swiss referendum on all important legislation. Taken as whole, the platform will embody most of the reforms demanded by the Socialistic and labor parties at their conventions.

The presented. So it was decided at the McGill last night. This narrows the contest to s McGill and, judging by the present indications, the former will be nominated on the first ballot. On the guber-natorial question the principal development in the calculation was the announcement that Warren J. Ives, the ex-Commissioner. was a candidate for nomination as Secretary of State, and that Capt. Osborn, formerly of the State Secretary's office, was in the field. Two additional candidates for Attorney-General made their appearance, one being W. F. Sawyer, for many years the County attorney of Steele County, and F. M. Wilson of Goodhue.

D. M. Clough will probably be unopposed for Lieutentant-Governor. Five are now contesting for the nomination for Secretary, for Lieutentant-Governor. Five are now contesting for the nomination for Secretary, three are after the State Treasurership, and five are willing to become Attorney-General. For Justices of the Supreme Court there have been no announcements or discussion, and the probability is that the present incumbents will be renominated irrespective of politics. As to the ticket which will be nominated, it is almost impossible to form an accurate opinion on the nominations below Lisutenant-Governor. The convention will be called to order at 11 o'clock in the People's Church anditorium.

It was a quarter to 12 o'clock when Chairman Joel heatwoise of the State Committee called the convention to order and prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Sam G. Smith, pastor of the People's Church and also a delegate to this convention. Tams Bixby, Secretary of the State Committee, read the call for the convention. Ex-Congressman Mark H. Dunneil was placed in nomination for temporary chairman and was elected by acciamation, Mr. Dunneil addressed the convention at some length on party principles and prospects. For temporary secretary, A. E. Clinch of Anoka was chosen, and F. J. Chapman of Duluth was made assistant secretary. Committees on credentials, resolutions and permanent organization were appointed and a recess was taken until 2 o'clock.

MR. BCHMIDT'S HARD LUCK. He Claims He Has Been the Victim

Police Persecution. Jacob Schmidt, a stone-mason, and a citizen of some means, has a grievance against the Police Department and the First District Police Court. He alleges in the first instance that at noon, Sunday, July 10, Pathat at noon, Sunday, July 10, Patroiman Sloan approached him at Second and Gratiot streets and struck him in the neck for no purpose whatever. A friend of his named Jacob Wartman advised him to report the matter to the Chestnut Street sub-Station, and Schmidt claims that he started to go to the station, but Officer Sloan overtook him and beat him severely in the presence of two other officers. Schmidt states that he begged the police to arrest him and place a charge against him if he could, but they refused, and later went away from him. He then went to the Chestnut Street Station, but the screent in charge made light of his complaint, as Schmidt states, But he met Sergt. Wray, with whom he is acquainted, and Sergt. Wray promised to investigate the matter. Schmidt states that on the advice of an attorney he went to Assistant Proseculing Attorney Estep to secure a warrant against Officer Sloan but Mr. Estep told him to lodge a complaint with the Police Board. Investigation of these statements of Schmidt's reveal that no complaint was lodged with the board. Secretary-to-the-Chief Lucas said that if Schmidt had reported the matter at any of the stations the complaint would have been sent to head-quarters. Sergt. Wray is on the sick list and could not be seen. Sloan approached the complaint would have been sent to headquarters. Sergt. Way is on the sick list and could not be seen.

Schmidt further alleges that he had occasion to visit a friend of his June 24, and on departing took with him a bunch of flowers which his friend gave him. He covered the flowers with a piece of paper and entered Lafayette Park. Within the park Officer Schmidt put him under arrest and charged him with plucking flowers from the park beds.
Schmidt says that he was refused the privilege to communicate with his friends, and the next morning he was fined $10 for contempt by Judge Morris because he asked to make an affirmation instead of an oath, and was then fined $100 on the testimony of Officer Schmidt for plucking flowers in the park. The records of the Police Court confirm these facts, but Clerk Pierce Keating states that Schmidt made a great deal of very unseemly noise and raised a disturbance in court for which the Judge assessed him $10, but remitted it at the close of court: The $100 fine was given on the testimony of the officer, and Schmidt was sent to the Work-house from which place he was released yesterday by the efforts of influencial friends who believed that he was the victim of persecution. Schmidt is firmly of the oplnion that he was arrested by Officer Schmidt on June 24 as a result of his complaint against Officer Sloan on June 8.

SHAMOKIN, O., July 28 .- The police are tryng to get at the truth regarding the death of John Weldensane, a wealthy liveryman of Lewisburg. He was taken from a burning building on Saturday morning, and on inves-tigation it was found that he was shot in the nead. The Coroner's Jury found that he had committed suicide. The tragedy occurred in the house of his sweetheart, Miss Kate Neyhart. Monday it was ascertained that his skull had been crushed by means of a blunt instrument. This was the first intimation of instrument. This was the first intimation of foul play, although Miss Neyhart strenuously adhered to the original story of suicide. More interest is added to the case by the report of the physicians who made a post-mortem examination of Weldensane. They find that the bullet that penetrated the brain did not fit the chamber of the revolver found by the dead man's side. This adds mystery to the case, and the authorities now believe that the man was murdered.

He waived examination and was held for trial at a higher court.

W. R. Henson was shot in the right shoulder by Foster Burns yesterday at Springfield, Mo. The parties were political enemies.
R. P. Wright was released from the Arkansas Fenitentiary yesterday after serving five years for bigamy. He was at once rearrested by the Sheriff of Shelby County, Tex., on a charge of murder.

Warrants have been sworn out for the ar-rest of fifteen boys, and Ed Campbell, Grant List and Jack Lowry, three of the number, residing at Beebe, Ark., have been arrested for unmercifully flogging an old man by the name of Edwards.

Carondelet Iron-Workers Will Not Go to

The story published in a morning paper old employes of the and Jupiter Irom can and Jupiter Irom Mills in this locality caused much surprise in this section of the city. Very few of the old from workers are residing in Carondelet at present. Nearly all have succeeded in getting employment in the tron mills at Centralia and Believille. Ill., and Middleport, O. A few of the old employee of these mills who live here, such as James Foristel, John Gorman, Tom Gavin, Tom O'Brien, say that if any of the old mill hands have been engaged to work in Homestead they must have been secured outside of Carondelet. There are some few men residing here but have other vocations and would not resign to take a position in a mill where there was a strike. Again there are a few who would go to Homestead if there was an opportunity as quick as the wink of an eye. The Vulcan and Jupiter mills have been closed down for over three years and since the suspension of business, nearly all of the iron workers have succeeded getting work in the eastern section of the country.

Only yesterday Mrs. Hayden prosecuted her husband in the Court of Criminal Correction for abandonment, and thrashed him as soon as he left the court-room, so that when she and her husband reversed positions to-day in the Second District Police Court much curiosity was displayed. Charles Grady and Charles Hayden testined that she approached them on July is while they were adorning a fence with a medical work of art, and in a very boisterous manner demanded where Hayden had been for three weeks. Mr. Grady testined that she exclaimed, "I'll put a builet in your head," to which Mr. Hayden replied in a tone of resignation, that he would as soon that she would thus dispose of him as to talk him to death. Clemens Kreibohm's Body Found To-Day in Mill Creek Sewer.

Taken From the River.

EXPLOSION IN J. W. PETERS' PLACE BY WHICH TWO MEN WERE INJURED.

The Search for Young Muckley's Body Still in Progress-Theory That the Gas Explosion in Peters' Place Produced the Explosion in the Sewer-Repairing the Damage.

another victim of the explosion of Tuesday afternoon, and the body of Clemens C. Kreiohm is now at the Morgue awaiting inquiry Kreibohm came to his fate as follows: He was a brother-in-law of Fuchs, where the explosion occurred. On Tuesday afternoon he went down to Carondelet, and as he did not show up at home that night, nor at his place of business, 316-318 Market street, yes-erday morning, his friends conthat on his return from . Louis he had naturally dropped in to have a chat with Fuchs, and went down in the crash that followed the ion under Fuchs' place. It was there-ought extremely likely that his body vould be found near where Fuchs' had been. hen, therefore, yesterday afternoon the excavators brought up Fuchs' coat and vest, Krelbohm's remains and there was consider able feverish excitement as the search progressed. The slow and tollsome work of removing the debris was continued in the sewer under Fuch's saloon until lo'clock this morning, but Krelbohm's body was not disclosed. By this time the obstructions to the current had been pretty well removed, and it was reasoned that the body would be likely to be swept down the sewer. A gang of sewer and water department men had been working all night in the Iron Mountain yards clearing the sewer of the ties and other debris that choked the channel and these were instructed to pay particular attention to stuff lodging near the first opening, about 200 feet south of Third street and nearly opposite the N. K. Fairbank bollerhouse. Here had lodged quite an obstinate hm's remains and there was consider nearly opposite the N. K. Fairbank boiler-house. Here had lodged quite an obstinate mass of stuff from above and it was a work of some difficulty to loosen it. While engaged in this work a body floated to the surface. It was fished up and placed on the banks and was at once identified as that of Kreibohm from the clothing and watch. Richard Shea, who was in charge of the sewer gang, says that the body looked somewhat blue and water-soaked, but there were no marks of burning that he noticed, and he did not know that any examination was there made as to broken limbs or any other injuries which the unfortunate man may have sustained. A patrol wagon was sent for and the body was taken to the Morgue.

HUNTING FOR MUCKLEY. Relays of men in the city employ have been orking steadily in Fuchs' cellar and in the Iron Mountain yards ever since the time of the explosion. Interest at the Fuchs' place now centers on the probability of finding the man supposed to be Muckley. This is probably the last of those who were in Fuchs' place when the explosion occurred and who can not be accounted for. If Muckley is in the ruins the body is quite certain to be found during the day. It may not be found, however. A large amount of stuff is blocking the sewer just below the portion blown open by the explosion, and it will be a hard job to dislodge it. Muckley's body may be wedged in there. When loosened up it will certainly be picked up below, as men are stationed in the railroad yards to make a saivage of anything of value that floats down. The workmen say that they never had a more vexatious job than to clear out the debris from these ruins. There is no room for a derrick to handle heavy articles, and everything had to be done by hand and sheer strength. Most of the stuff was in the water, and the current is fully as strong as it is in the Mississippi and if a man makes a misstep or loses his balance, he is likely to find himself being swept down the torrent. To save work as much as possible, they let everything that will float take its chances down the sewer, to be rescued by the party below. But they surmise that the sewer may be blocked between Fuchs' place and the Iron Mountain opening; and it is proposed to send a man down with a skiff as soon as it seems likely that the passage can be made.

The Iron Mountain people are busily engaged to-day in improvising tracks over the gaged to-day in improvising tracks over the explosion. The work were hand a more equaled. For the last week the farmers have been frightened over the present, and Dakota and Minneston and the Iron Mountain opening; and it is proposed to send a man down with a skiff as soon as it seems likely that the passage can be made to down the explosion. plosion. proposed to send a man down with a stiff as soon as it seems likely that the passage can be made.

The Iron Mountain people are busily engaged to-day in improvising tracks over the open sewer through nearly 1,000 feet of their yards. This morning they derricked the freight cars out of the sewer, and made good progress toward a protempore tresile that will enable them to run trains out of the Fourth street depot. Service from this station has been suspended since Tuesday afternoon, but the Carondelet trains that and Convent streets. The company hopes to make connection with the Chouteau avenue depot this afternoon.

Explosion AT PETERS.

Another viction of the Mill Creek-Fuchs explosion turned up to-day. His name is Charles Humpert, but he sist goes by the name of Charles Weiss, after his step-father. He is at St. Mary's Hospital, Fifteenth and Papin streets, from painful but not dangerous burns received on Tuesday afternoon at the exact time when Fuchs' place was blown up.

tents, with the result of killing several people and wrecking a large amount of property.

The facts do not seem to justify the theory.
Mr. J. W. Feters gave a Post-Dispatou reporter this morning this statement of the transaction in his storage room:

"The de of my men were in the cellar at the time—kd Vieh, Lawrence Brown and Chas. Humpert. They went down there and lit the gas and had been working there some minutes when the explosion took place. From the fact that the gas had been burning as usual, I reason that there was no gas in my storage room and that the Fuchs explosion coulain't have originated on my premises. Vieh and Brown were at work in the from part of the cellar, and Humpert had lit a candie and was walking towards the rear of the room, where it was quite dark, when there was a mash, a wave of hot air and then all was over. I understand Brown made for one of the ice-boxes and Vieh rushed out on the sidewalk, with Bumpert a good second. The latter was painfully burned and we sent him at once to the hospital; the other two were only warmed—warmed up a little."

Peters says that they saw the fash and heard the puff.

Humpert is said to be getting along comfortably. He has a wife at Cape Girardeau, and it was fear of exciting and distressing her that induced Mr. Feters to withhold reporting the matter fully until to-day.

The city people are working assiduously at the removal of the debris. Mr. W. H. Murphy, superintendent of the Sewer Department, has a gang of his most expert sewer. Cleaners on the job, and Mr. John L. Duffy, general superintendent of the department, has a force of able bodied employes which he is keeping hustling. At noon Mr. Duffy had planted a derrick on the Fuchs lot, in the rear of the wrecked building, and expected to have the sewer at this point completely cleared this afternoon.

The sewer emits a strong odor of coal of and kindred substances. Oil, or something similar, is plainly discernible on the surface and the officials are disposed to doubt that it is the residuum from the Waters-Pierce fre. It was stated that they are going to have a scientific examination of the water made this afternoon. It will be remembered that the Waters-Pierce Co. deny that the explosion could have been caused by gasoline leaking from their fire, but they gave a "tip" to the effect that the Water Gas Works was operating again on the siy and had been discharging their refuse into the sewer.

The sewer officials hinted that the proposed examination of the sewer water had reference to the theory that the water pas concern might have furnished the stuff for the explosion.

PLANS FOR REPAIRING THE SEWER.

ence to the theory that the water-gas concern might have furnished the stuff for the explosion.

PLANS FOR REPAIRING THE SEWER.
Bridge Engineer Gaylor was looking over the wreck this forencon. He will devise plans for placing a temporary arch or bridge to over the sewer pending its permanent repair.
Water Commissioner Holman and City Counselor Marshall were also at the scene of the explosion this morning to get the necessary data for computing the damages sustained by the city.

City Comptroller Stevenson says that the city has about $72,000 laid aside for sewer purposes, and in a case of necessity like the present one, he presumes the work of extending the sewing system will have to be curtailed and the necessary funds supplied for the repairs to be put on the Mill Creek sewer.

BUPPOSED TO BE A. J. M'OLELLAN.
The body of another probable victim of the Mill Creek sewer has been found. This morning about 5:30 o'clock James Jacobs and Wiley Ruffin, two colored men, found the body of a white man in the river at the foot of Krauss street. The dead man's face and neck were covered with blisters as though he had been burned. Upon his person the police discovered a bank account book on the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., and showed that he deposited $10 on July 23, and drew $1 on July 26, the day of the accident. On one of the blank pages was written, "Bank account of A. J. McCiellan, 1818 Market street." There were several letters of a business nature found, and also addressed to the same individual. A knife and handkerchief were also found.

The police describe him as a man of about 30 years of age, 5 feet 8 inches tail, light complected and wore a light mustache. He was dressed in jean pants, cotton shirt and wore galter shoes. It is the supposition here that he is one of the two men who were walking down the track when the explosion occurred. The coroner was notified and the body removed to the Morgue.

KING MAY GO FREE.

Unexpected Termination of the Memphis Murder Case. NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 28 .- H. Clay King the Memph is lawyer who killed David Poston, and his attorneys pleaded for the petition of habeas corpus before Judge Jackson in the United States Court here to day. Sheriff McLendo of Shelby County appeared by At-torney-General Pickle for the State. The argument was based on the fact that the jury which tried the case in the Memphis court went into Arkansas during the progress of the trial.

In his opinion Judge Jackson held that King did not have a fair trial, and the jury, when it went into Arkansas, was not a jury of Tennessee. This amounts to King's unconditional release. Judge Jackson said he would decide whether to release King by tomorrow.

This is an nnexpected ending of one of the most famous cases ever tried in the United States.

Thieves Work St. Louis Republicans Returning From Sedalia.

Local Politicians Robbed of Diamonds, Watches and Money.

THE POLICE NOTIFIED AND LOOKING FOR THE PICKPOCKETS.

Collector Ziegenhein, Charles Gitchell and ence report on an unimportant measure the Victims-Maj. Warner in the City-He Refuses to Discuss Democratic Charges - Gubernatorial Candidate streets, or at the depot, or on board the train en route home, no one apparently day next as the date for adjournment. Gencan tell, but the one fact known is that they erai speech making followed. "worked" for the aggregate stated. The list of losers as known to-day is as follows: City Collector Henry Ziegen-hein, pocketbook containing $160; Charles Mr. Vogelsang, diamond stud valued at $400; Edgar H. Mepham of Recorder Hobbs' office, diamond stud valued at $150; one St. Louisan, whose name could not be learned, gold watch and chain valued at $250. These losses have been reported to the St. Louis police, the authorities at Sedalia have been notified, and telegrams have been sent to other points for the purpose of locating the thieves if possible. There seems to be an inability to fix the time or place atjwhich the robberies occurred. There is a story that the St. Louisian who lost the gold watch and chain discovered the loss before leav-ing Sedalia and notified the police. On the special train which brought the St.

Louisans home, leaving Sedalia at 12:10 o'clock, the first intimation of thieves being at work was when Edgar Mepham, standing on the car platform in a crowd, feit a sudden wrench at his shirt front, and immediately afterwards say that his dia. immediately afterwards saw that his diamond stud was gone. He gave the alarm through the car, and then Gitchell found that his diamond stud was lso missing, and the others named discover, ed their losses. Collector Ziegenhein was on the regular St. Louis train, leaving for St. Louis at 12:15 this morning, and he did not miss his pocket-book until he reach dhis office in this city. He thinks it likely that the wallet may have dropped from the pocket of his trousers in the sleeper berth, and has telegraphed to the Pullman concluctor to make a search for it.

This me rning Mr. Gitchell called at the Four Con ris and reported the losses. Vogelsang a lso did the same, and it is stated that he identified a picture in the Rogues' Gallery as strongly resembling a man who crowded him on the Sedalia platform just before the train left. It is the general police opinion that a gang of pickpockets and "swell mob" workers are responsible for the bosses of the now melancholy St. Louis Republicans. Detective Applegate of St. Louis was at Sedalia yesterday and there is a rumor that he effected the arvest of quite a noted "crook" in the crowd during the ceremonies of the day. This fa.2t, however, affords the disconsolate st. Louisans little comfort, as they do not believe it possible that their jewely, etc., was "swiped" during the day, but think the loss occurred at the depot at night, or on the special train, which contained a good many strangers. One of the roughest features of the raid on the Republicans is that on the way to Sedalia on Wednesday morning they were all laughing at the similar mishap which befell the St. Louis Democrats who went to the Democratic Convention at . efferson City, and proclaimed that such this kgs never occurred to mar the kenest pleasures of a Republican gathering. ed their losses. Collector Ziegenhein was the regular St. Louis train, leaving for St.

Sedalia, accompanied by (701. Fred Schaurte, R. C. Kerens, W. S. Shirk and Hon. R. C. Horr of Michigan. Maj. Warner was completely prostrated when he arrived in the city, and repaired at once to the Lindell Hotel, where he was assigned to room No. 12. When called for breakfast, Maj. Warner was unable to go down to the dining-room, and has remained in his room all day. When a POST-DISPATCH reporter called on the gubernatorial candidate this afternoon he was surrounded by a number of friends. . "I have not a word for publication at this particular time, " said he, rest. Of course I am receiving friends whenever they call, but I will make no calls, as the Sedalla jubilee has about prostrated me, and I will remain in my room until after supper, when I will take a train for Kansas City. When questioned in regard to the election in Kansas City in 1868 when he was declared the choice for circuit attorney, he replied: "I do not care to discuss a subject that was talked of thirty years ago, nor will I pay any attention to the charges made against me in regard to the election of '68. I am a candidate for Governor on the Republican ticket of 1892 and I have reasons to believe that I will be elected."

The scene of contest has expanded and the House to day transferred some of the responsibility of keeping in session to the Senate. By a large majority a joint resolution was passed providing for an adjournment of Congress on Saturday. Should the Senate fix a date of final adjournment, the position of the fillbusters, of course, would be much improved.

The prevailing opinion is that the Senate will not act on the adjournment resolution until the sundry civil bill is sent over to it.

Mr. Bingham of Pennsylvania has offered, in the House, for reference to the Committees on Rules the following resolutions to cut off the fillbustering:

of 90 and above have occurred almost daily throughout this entire area; and from the 18th to the 24th the temperature rose every day to 100 and above in Nebraska and Kansas. Begin ning with the present week unusually high temperatures, from 90 to 100, have also occurred throughout the Southern and Middle States and New England, except in the localities on the immediate coast. Temperatures of 100 occurred at Philadelphia and Baltimore on the 26th, at Lynchburg on the 26th and 27th, and 99 at Washington on the 26th. These temperatures were from one to three degrees higher than any of which the weather bureau has record during the third decade of July.

Temperatures of 35 and above have occurred at Lynchburg four days, at Washington, Baltimore, Parkersburg and Pittsburg three days, at Philadelphia two days and at New York and Boston one day during the present week, including Wednesday. The daily maximum temperatures this week at Atlantic City have been respectively 76, 82, 82 and 84. The high temperature is likely to continue throughout the Middle Atlantic States till to-morrow with local showers in the evening; but cooler weather may be expected by Friday night. The cool wave of this morning in the West and Northwest is accompanied by unprecedentedly low temperature for this season of the year, a enne, Wyo., and of 80 from Havre, Mont., which are respectively 4 and 13 lower than any previously recorded during the last decade of July.

"Mr. Chairman, for ten days we have been trying to organize this convention. So far we have falled, not because Mr. Clark has not a clear majority of the delegates in this convention, but because of the arbitrary and unheard of dictations of the Congressional Committee in undertaking to dictate to the convention what delegates were entitled to seats. We know that we have thirty-six regularly accredited delegates who hold credentials from the delegates who hold credentials from the proper Democratic authorities of the several counties. We do not propose longer to be dictated to, or to recognize any delegate except those holding credentials from the proper authorities. We have been, deprived of the representation that part are sons of confederate soldiers, but so we are justly entitled. The Congressional Com mittee have, without right or authority, dictated, or tried to dictate, not only who the officers should be, but what delegates should have seats. The Committee on Credentials reported that the regularly elected delegates from Crawford were entitled to seats in the convention. The temporary organization was then made permanent after which Hon. Champ Clark was nominated for Congress.

No other nominations being made, the Secretary was ordered to call the roll, which resulted as follows: Audrain, Crawford, Ralls and Pike cast 36 votes for Champ Clark, Lincoln, Montgomery, St. Charles, Warren and Gasconade refusing to vote. On the announcement of the roll call the Chairman declared Champ Clark duly nominated as Congressman from the Ninth Congressional District of Missouri. A motion was then made by Mr. Peerson of Pike to adjourn, which motion was declared carried, and the convention then adjourned and everybody went wild while pandemonium reigned.

GOV. M'CREARY'S STRATEGY.

He Captured the Circus and Made His Political Meeting a Success.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Gov. McCreary tells how he made a speech in a town where Robinson's circus was holding its show and captured the crowd. Said he: "I heard nothing of the circus, and as I drove on toward the town where I was to speak I was surprised at the number of people I saw going into the city. I was much elated. I thought they were going to a political meeting, and imagined that everybody had heard of Gov. McCreary and was going to hear him speak. As I neared the town the crowd became greater. It contained negroes and whites. It was made up of young and old, and I thought it very strange. At last I passed an old black aunty with a young black girl running beside her, and stopped her and said:
""Good day, auntle. Going in to the speaking?"
""What! said the old woman. What's dat you say?" From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Are you going in to town to hear the speaking, auntie?"

"Speakin'! said the old woman, as a look of blank amazement spread over her black face. 'I didn't know they was any speakin'. I'se goin' in to the circus."

"At that my feelings fell and I thought of turning back. It is no use to speak against a circus in Kestucky. You are sure to be beaten. Still I was advertised to speak in the Court-house that morning, and I knew if I didn't do something with the circus I would talk to empty benches. Now, I had several newspaper men with me and I sent one of them to see Mr. Robinson, the manager of the circus, and divide his time with me. This newspaper man was a nice fellow, but the circus, and divide his time with me. This newspaper man was a nice fellow, but he had no idea how to manage a diplomatic affair like this. He went and came back and told me he had seen Robinson and Robinson told him he didn't care a blankety blank for McCreary, and that McCreary could speak when he pleased and what he pleased. That he was here to manage his show and he was going to manage it.

going to manage it.

""What did you tell him?" said I.

""It lold him that Mr. McCreary was in town and was advertised to speak, and that he would like to divide time with him."

""Did you tell him that I was a candidate for Governor and that I was a Democrat?'
'' 'No, I did not,' replied the newspaper for Governor and that I was a Democrat?

"No, I did not," replied the newspaper man.

"Well, you come with me, 'said I, 'and I will show you how to get along with the circus.' We then went out and the newspaper man pointed out Robinson. He was standing with a number of circus employes around him. I stepped up to him, took off my hat and bowed very low and asked him if I had the honor of addressing Mr. Robinson, the influential and distinguished citizen of New York who had done so much for the Democratic party. He replied that he was the man. Then I went on: 'Mr. Robinson, I am glad to have the honor of meeting you. I have been sent by Gov. McCreary, the candidate for the Democratic Governor in this State, to give you his regards and to request that inasmuch as he knows of your services to the party, and as he is to speak here today, to ask that you will arrange it, if possible, to let him know at what time he can hold his meeting so as not to conflict with your celebrated show. Gov. McCreary, Mr. Robinson, has a very high opinion of you, and he wisnes to oblige you.'

"Robinson, the circus man, was highly flattered at this address. I could see he was dumbfounded when he said:

"I thauk Gov. McCreary very much, and I would 'like to see him. Take me and introduce me to him."

"Well," continued Gov. McCreary." I couldn't introduce myself after that harangue in the presence of these circus men, but I said:

"All right. Come along, I'll take you to him."

"With that I took him to my room, and as soon as we got inside I shut the door. Rob-him."

"With that I took him to my room, and as soon as we got inside I shut the door. Robinson looked all around and asked.
"But where is the governor?"
"I rose to my full height, put one hand on my breast and held out the other to Bobinson.

my breast and held out the other to Robinson.

"Mr. Robinson," said I, as I took his hand; let me make you acquainted with 60v. McCreary of keatucky." And with that I patted my chest with the other hand and bowed. Robinson laughed and he said that he would do anything he could in his power to help along my meeting. He started his procession and brought it around to the Courthouse, and there made the men and women get off their horses and go in and listen to the speech. The result was that the whole crowd went with them and I had an immense audience. The only trouble I had as to the circus spectators was that they applauded whenever I made a pause and often cheered at the wrong time. At the close of my speech Robinson handed me a handful of tickets and told me to come to the show and bring my friends. The same day there was a prohibition orator in town, and I asked him if he was going to speak against the circus. He replied that his audience would be men of principle and that he was not afraid of the circus. I dropped into his hail that night, and he crowd consisted of two old women and a by.

During last year's cruise of the Russian war-schooner Aleut in Siberian waters the officers landed on liehring's Island to look for the grave of the discoverer of Behring Straits. His bones and those of his companions in misfortune were found buried beneath a simple stone cairn. The officers determined that a more worthy memorial should replace the cairn, and when they returned to Viadivostok started a subscription among the officers of the Siberian squadron. With the proceeds they have obtained a handsome granite tombstone, surmounted by a large from cross, which will be erected over Behring's grave next month. Capt. Vitus Behring was a Dane by birth, but was in the Russian navalservice when his important discovery was made, in 1728. He died Dec. 4, 1741 (O. S.), from scurvy on Behring's Island, where he and his companions had sought refuge after the foundering of their ship.

Cadar Rapids, Iowa—The general freight agent of Burlington. Uedar Rapids Road, has reports on corn crop from about 100 points. Wonderful progress has been made. Crops that were considered gone are now advanced in good shape. Only low land looks short. All claim three-queriegs of a crop-and some claim fully as good as last year. Barley excellent.

The Cincinnati Price Current says: Corn has made favorable progress, particularly so where there was sufficient moisture; the hot weather of the past few days somewhat jeopardizing the crop where lacking moisture. But such areas are relatively Himited and the general average condition is maintained. Winter wheat returns confirm previous indications of disappointments, somewhat overbalancing better yields than estimated. Little more willingness to sell wheat. Out crop returns rather better than previously.

New York, July 28, 11 a. m.—The stock market opened this morning with a moderate degree of animation and a well-distributed business, but the advancing tendency in railroad stocks was held in check by the resilizations and consequent weakness in the industrials. Sugar declined rapidly in the early trading, and at 10334 was 28 per cent below its last night's figure, while the Cettes Oil shares after slight fractional gains, and appear away about 1 per cent. Atchison, the coalers and the grangers were the most prominent in railroad shares, but no strength was shown and prices as a rule sagged slightly during the hour, the fluctuations being of the usual insignificant order. The movement is the Minasapolis & St. Louis shares was continued, however, and the common ross to 16 and the preferred a like smount to 36. The late dealings were marked by no feature and at 110 clock the market was dull and barely steady, generally at a shade under first prices.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

Pronunciation Match at Summit Avenue Church-K. of. H. Meeting. A pronunciation match, something that is extremely novel in this part of the country. was given last night at Summit Avenue M. E. Church, in East St. Louis. Grown men and women, young boys and girls, stood up in line to be "pronounced down," instead of "spelled down," as the saying was in former years when "spelling matches" were in vogue. The match was conducted under the auspices of the Enworth League and the prize was a nice waten charm in the shape of a cross inscribed with the League motto, "Look up. Ift up." To begin their friends chose sides the pronounced were given out by the master of ceremonies, who did not pronounce them, but simply spelled them letter by letter. But a short time was required to "down" one of the sides and then the real contest began. Those who desired to compete for the prize formed a class and heard the words to be pronounced called from a list of 150 prepared by Profa. Manners and Lanham, prominent East St. Louis pedagogues. The persons failing to correctly pronounce the words given them dropped out of the class until finally but two remained who had not missed aword. These were Miss Carry Van Blarcom and Mr. Horace J. Eggman. Miss Van Blarcom and Mr. Horace J. Eggman. Miss Van Blarcom and Mr. Horace J. Eggman. Miss Van Blarcom and Mr. Horace J. Eggman, miss van Blarcom, and mustache, sape, vagary, tribunal, twords given for pronunciation was as follows: Licorice, ignoramus, exhaust, dessert, florist, mischlevous, national, mustache, sape, vagary, tribunal, toward, stratum, squalor, sacrament, romance, process, parent, often, office, museum, mercantile, maritime, lyceum, lamentable, juvenile, isolated, iron, idea, helmous, gratis, fidelity, ducat, accile, donnely, columa, coffee, catch, carbine, bronchitis, biasphemous, banana, bade, aunt, again, finance, wristband, caliloce, hog, hearth, brooch, community, extempore, oleomargarine, obelisk, pretty, offer, grenuine, tiny, dovecote, predecessor, laugh, patron, patriot, peony, plano, artificer. cam, leverage, horizon, conspiracy, respite, discipline, committee, contribute, sapultarr, macunice, diploma, declimate, al was given last night at Summit Avenue M. atory Institution. DES MOINES, Io., July 28 .- In a narrow cell n the Marshalltown jatl lies a young girl not more than 18 years old. Her mild manners do not indicate the determination of purpose which aided her in accomplishing the crime with which she is charged, the abduction of an inmate of the State Industrial School at Eldora. The young fellow whom she succeeded in getting away fromthe school, which under the State laws is nothing more nor less to grasping an opportunity to escape. The young woman claims her name is Wyant, and that she is the boy's sister. The part she played in his rescue has attracted much attention. The rules of the institution forbid visitors entering within a high fence where the boys play, yet she scaled the wall and bodily carried the boy, to a buggy which she had in waiting near the reformatory, after which they rapidly drove away. Supt. Crouse was standing at some distance from the scene of the abduction, but near enough to witness the entire transaction. The boy left the buggy a short distance from Eldora, and has not been recaptured, while the girl went on to Marshalitown and was arrested in that city.

But the best authorities concur in the statement that this distinguished citizen, soldier and Statesman died at Ottumwa, Io., on the 1st of June, 1879, and if there is any octogenarian out in Ohio posing in the General's name it must be a spook or a case of false pretenses.

It was First Elevated to a Fine Art Fy an English Fergeant.

It must not be forgotten that the circus manager who, in England, says the London Standard, first elevated circus riding to the olignity of a fine art had been a sergeant of dragoons. This was old Philip Astley, the founder of the historic Amphitheater in the Westminster Bridge road, which was subsequently associated with the names as lessees and managers of bucrow and Batty, and is now prosperously conducted by Mr. Sanger, but which, to the popular mind, will ever be known as "Astley's." Old Philip was the boldest of the bold dragoons, and on retiring from the service bis commanding officer made him a present of a high-spirited but doclie charger. The non-com. bought another horse at Smithfield, and set up an exhibition of horsemanship in the field at Lambeth. In the course of time he occupied successively more and more extensive premises. He was patronized by royalty and his name and amphitheater became household words. Astley was as well known in Paris as in London, and on the Boulevard du Temple he built a theater for equestrian entertainments, which at the time of the revolution had been the waxwork solon of the ingenious Swiss Curtius, the uncle and instructor in the ceroplastic art of Mme, Tussaud. During the long years of the Napoleonic wars Astley's property in Paris was sequestrated, but at the peace he was reinstated in his French belongings, and he died at his house on the Boulevard du Temple in 1815. He was succeeded in equestrian artist, and finally because the extravagant dandyism of his every-day attire gave the Emperor, when he was in a facetious humor, the opportunity of annoying his brother-in-law, Murat, King of Naples, by telling him that what with his furred and embroidered pelisse, the snow-white plume and diamond algrette in his cap, his crimson morocco Hessian boots, his white kid gloves, and the light riding switch with the feweled handle, with which he led his division of cavalry to battle, he looked far less a king than Fra English Sergeant.

Is It the General's Ghost?

"Gen. James Shields, veteran of the Mexican and civil wars, Governor of Oregon Territory, and ex-senator of Illinois and Minnesota," says the Boston Post, "is said to be living in abject poverty on a small farm in Ohio. He is 82 years old."

The above extraordinary paragraph is now on its rounds, and were there a scintilla of truth in it, would at once excite the national sympathies in behalf of the "abject pauper."

sympathies in behalf of the acceptance party. It so happens, however, that Gen. James Shields, the veteran referred to as now toling on a small farm at the age of $2, was gathered to his fathers some years ago.

It is true that Gen. Shields fid do gallant service in Mexico and also in the civil war; that he was for a short time Governor of Oregon Territory; that he was a United States Senator from lilinois and Minnesota, and the writer of the above parapraph might also have added Missouri, from which State he filled out the unexpired terms of Lewis Y.

CIRCUS RIDING.

It was First Elevated to a Fine Art Fy an nandie, with which he led his division of cavalry to battle, he looked far less a king than Franconi, the riding master. This renowned professor of equestrianism founded a family which still carries on as a fine art the craft pursued with such consummate ability by their ancestor. Nor must it be forgotten that circus riding as a fine art was practiced in the United States long before the late Herr Ernst attained celebrity. Five and forty years ago that astonishing American equestrian known as the young Hernandez was universally acknowledged to be the best trick rider the modern ring had seen since the universally acknowledged to be the best trick rider the modern ring had seen since the days of Andrew Ducrow; while not the least among the many strings to the bow of the late Mr. Phineas T. Barnum were the equestrian circuses with which he delighted two generations of sightseers. Of our own circus ridors, especially the performers on barebacked steeds and the ladies who figure in the graceful display of the haute ecole, England has every reason to be proud. We are the equals of all the nations and the superiors of some in ring performances, while as respects the English ring clown, he has never been surpassed and he is as eagerly applauded on the banks of the Neva, the Bosphorus and the Hooghly as he is on those of the Thames, the Liffey or the Clyde.

What Racing Costs in England.

From the Saturday Review.

Mr. L. H. Curzon estimates the horses at present "devoted to the service of the turf," including those in training, sires, mares, toals and yearlings, at 10,000. On these he puts an average value of £300 apiece, and on the £3,000,000 thus obtained he charges 5 per cent interest, making £150,000 a year for capital account. He then assumes that half the 10,000 horses are in training, and allows £156 per head for trainers' bills, making £780,000 a year, £10 per head for entries and forfeits, making £50,000 a year and £25 per head for traveling expenses and jockeys' fees, amounting to an additional £125,000 a year. These sums make up a grand total of £1,105,000 as the annual cost, including interest of capital and expenses of the horses "devoted to the service of the turf." He put the number of persons "employed in various capacities in direct connection with racing" at £10,000, and the average earnings of these, including board and lodging at £1 a week each, or more than £500,000 a year. "A thousand pounds," says Mr. Curzon, "for riding a Derby winner has come to be looked upon as quite a common fee," and he states that over £3,000 on one occasion was paid to a rider of a Derby winner. A famous jockey received, "it is said, in two seasons as many boxes of cigars as would have stocked a modest shop," and he was given "seven gold watches (he always used a silver one) and seven finger rings set with dlamonds." From the Saturday Review. Mr. L. H. Curzon estimates the horses

New Siamese Twins.

From the New York Clipper. From the New York Clipper.

That strange freak of nature, the Siamese twins, has, it appears, been repeated in Orissa. The Orissa twins are described as two little Urlya girls, about 12 summers old. When last heard of they were leaving by steamer for England, on their way to the World's fair, though they will first be exhibited at London. They are, it is stated, firmly joined together, and if one is fed both are satisfied.

When they were in early infancy at Hoapara, in the interior of Orissa, the native villagers looked upon them as the incarnation of the devil, and their parents were boycotted by their caste people. A story is that the father's first impulse was to separate them by cutting the sac which joins them together, and the mark made in the attempt is still visible. A wealthy tehsilder of the district, however, intervened. Ketter Natck, the father of the wins, is reported to be now steadily growing rich.

TRACKED HIM FOR FORTY YEARS.

Story of Tireless Vengeance From the Far Northwest.

After a patient, weary search extending over the Western Continent and covering a period of nearly forty years, Charles Hartley of Oswego, N. Y., a few days ago ended a period in his eventful life by arresting Allen Hartley, a cousin charged with the murder of his wife two-score years ago, says an Eilenwood (British Columbia) correspondent. The man arrested is an old resident of this city, having lived here nearly twolve years. He served two terms as Mayor and has been successful in the accumulation of a comfortable fortune. Four years ago he married a well-known lady of this place. Back of it is a story tinged with romance and sulfied by a crime so remarkable in its details that it furnishes a chapter in criminal history.

Allen Hartley is now a man of nearly 70. When his locks were raven and his beard was young he married a charming young lady, the belle of the small interior town in New York where they both resided. Charles Hartley, the cousin, who yesterday, after such a lapse of years, caused the arrest of Allen, was an unsuccessful suitor. Though denied all hope be still loved, and this fame, keep burling through the years, caused the tracking down and arrest of the wife murderer.

Thirty-nine years ago next May Hartley bade his friends a hasty farewell, and at the same time informed them that with his wife he was soling West to seek his fortune. No one saw the couple leave the town, and finally murmurs of something wrong in creased to open gossip. Charges of foul play were freely made, but there were none to prove them, and at length they died away.

When, later, the house in which the Hartleyshad lived was being repaired, and there was found in a cemented vault beneath it the skeleton of Agnes Hartley, the town went and arrest of the wife murderer was gone and there was found in a cemented vault beneath it the skeleton of Agnes Hartley, the town went and the skeleton of Agnes Hartley, the town went and the skeleton of Agnes Hartley, the town the skeleton of Agnes Hartley, the town the skeleton of Agnes patient, weary search extending of the Horn. NEW YORK, July 28.—There is great alarm heavy freight except what has to be delivthat has taken the breath away from the ava streams are again advancing. railroads, and probably their business will be demoralized for a year to come. The transcontinental railroads have to pay the trunk lines 30 cents a hundred as their share of the haul from New York to San Francisco. The trunk lines will not take a cent less. Besides, the Western roads must have an allowance for the haul to the Missouri River. The transcontinental roads have thrown up their hands on all staple articles which do not need to be delivered for several months. Even the Southern, with the Morgan line to New Orleans, cannot make any show against the 30-cent rate of the through steamship lines. To do so would be to drag down the local rates from New York to Texas, and the loss would be still greater.

Here is the inside history of a neat trick haul from New York to San Francisco. The local rates from New York to Texas, and the loss would be still greater.

Here is the inside history of a neat trick perpetrated by Mr. J. S. Leeds, who, as traffic manager for the Missouri Pactific Rail-road, was figuratively beheaded by the Little Wizard at the order of the Western Traffic Association for cutting rates. Just at that time the merchants of the Pacific Coast, tired of paying what they considered exorbitant rates on freight, organized a protective association and held out a tempting bait to Mr. Leeds in the shape of a $10,000 salary and he will try to become its chairman. One of the plans that Leeds evolved to coerce the rafircads that had thrown him out was simple. He chartered for the Merchants' Association several fast clipper ships of $3,000 tons at $7 or so a ton, and a few days ago out them on the route between New York and San Francisco, via the Horn. Then he cut the established rate of the regular lines—such as the Southern Pacific mail vessels—in two, and again reduced the remainder to furnish a rate that suited the keen appetites of the Californians. The results was a 30 cent commodity rate on the keen appetites of the Californians. The results was a 30 cent commodity rate on the hower classes. This is a dull season, but tonnage doubled in a very short time. The C. E. Moody, the first clipper to load, is now on her way down the coast. The clipper Liveoks is loading, and the Emily Reed is chartered by the Merchants' Association to follow. But these vessels have not a monopoly of the business. Two other clipper lines had to meet the 30 cent. rate in order to make a showing. The Atlantic & Pacific Steamship Co. also joined the rate-cutters with a tariff nearly as low as the clippers. Reductions were made in all classes of freight from pickles to dry goods, and Mr. Leeds' scheme is has proved a success in the fullest sense of the term. As far as staple articles are concerned, which are as good six months from now as at present, the California merchants don't care whether the California merc

St. Paul, Minn., July 28,—The famous Fari-bault plan for which Archbishop Ireland went to Rome to fight has proved a failure statistic and to light has proved a failure at Stillwater, Minn. It is announced that St. Michael's parish school of that city, conducted the last year under the new plan, will conduct its school as parochial this year. The Stillwater Board of Education will not enter into a contract with St. Michael's School for amalgamation and in view of the enter into a contract with St. Michael's School for amalgamation, and in view of the opposition of the Catholics themselves the scheme was abandoned. Some talk was made a few days ago that the parochial schools would be closed and the children sent to the public schools, and largely for this reason the city Board of Education has taken steps to erect two additional school-houses. The action of the Baltimore Council, however, recommending the churches to maintain their parochial schools, would prevent this.

Etna is on the eastern seaboard of Sicily, Its height is 10,874 feet. From its summit the sea and country around can be seen for a distance of 150 miles, affording one of the most magnificent of prospects. The gently flowing lavas which reared the mighty mountain covered a large area, and the road which runs around the lower slopes is eighty mountain covered a large area, and the road which runs around the lower slopes is eighty-seven miles long. I we cities, Catania and Aci Reale, and sixty-three towns or villages are built around the base or on the slopes.

The first eruption within historic times is believed to have occurred seven centuries before Christ. Twelve eruptions of importance, some of which created great destruction, are recorded as occurring before the Christian era. One of the most disastrous outbursts occurred in 1169 A. D., when Catania was destroyed in a few minutes and 15,000 people were burled beneath the ruins. It was the day of the feast of Agatha, and the Cathedral of Catania was crowded with people, all of whom were burled by the overwhelming stream of lava. The victims included several Bishops and forty-four Benedictine monks.

several Bishops and forty-four Benedictine monks.

A still more destructive outburst, though it was not marked by so great a discharge of lava, occurred in 1693, when a violent earthquake shook Catania to the ground, burying 18,000 lnhabitants. Fifty towns in Sicily were destroyed, and it is said that at least 60,000 people perished.

During the eighteenth century quite a number of eruptions occurred, some of great violence, though most of them did little damage. During an eruption in 1832 a number of epople were watching the progress of the lava, when the front of the stream was suddenly blown out as by an explosion of gunpowder. The red-hot mass was hurled in every direction, and a cloud of vapor developed everything. Thirty-six people were killed on the spot and twenty survived but a few hours.

the spot and twenty survived but a few hours.

In 1852 a party of six English tourists were surprised by a very violent eruption as they were ascending the mountain. This outburst continued for nine months. The tourists were ascending from Nicolosi to witness the sunrise from the summit. As they approached the upper hut, known as Casa Inglese, the crater commenced to give forth ashes and hames of fire. Suddenly an earthquake shook the mountain, and the mules fled in terror. The tourists hastened down the mountain and reached Nicolosi in safety.

Out of the eighty-four eruptions on record, a comparatively small number have been of extreme violence, while many have been of a slight and harmless character. Eruptions occurred in 1868, 1869, 1869, 1874, 1879, 1883 and occurred in 1868. The outburst of 1886 destroyed vineyards and farm lands valued at $250,000.

Catania, the city from which the above cablegram comes, is a city of lava. The pavements of its streets and the walls of its buildings are all of the material that was once ejected trom one or another of the craters of Mount Etna.

Alabama, to be issued to-morrow Fontaine & Co., will say: The weather during the month has been unfavorale for cotton and for the season up to complete a certain portion of its line within the specified time, was thrown open to settlement yesterday under the homested act and a large number of filings were stead act and a large number of filings were made at the Land Office in this city. Excitement attended the opening of the land. The settlers in farm wagons have been passing through town continually night and day, going to and coming from the County Clerk's office at Hollister. These were generally old settlers, who have no doubt of beling able to prove their residence on land and cultivation of it. A number of San Francisco land hunters who have rushed into the county during the past week, have gone to San Francisco land hunters who have entries at the Land Office. This town is crowded with land seekers, who shave not yet taken selections, but many of whom are waiting for the stage to depart for Bannche and Vallectics, where the squatters think are the choicest places for settlement. The old-timers are affected very little by the opening of the land, but new comers are nervous and excited. There has been no viocilence outside of a few fights. A few hardy twomen are here to take up claims, and will probably secure lands.

Miss Dolliver's Remarkable Recovery
From Blindness. NEW YORK, July 28.—Miss Dolliver, sister of Congressman Dolliver of Iowa, was discharged from an ophthalmic hospital a few days ago, having experienced a somewhat remarkable restoration to sight after a total blindness which had affected one of her syes for nearly a year. It is said that only one blindness which had affected one of her eyes for nearly a year. It is said that only one similar instance is recorded in medical annals, and that it was the case of Gov. Lucius Robinson of this State, who was affected the same way and was also successfully treated. Miss bolliver about a year ago was opening a bottle of ginger als, the cork from which flew out and struck her in the eye, inflicting an apparent slight injury, but considerable pain. She was treated by local coulists and it was supposed she had entirely recovered. Some time afterward she found that her left eye was whoily bereft of sight. Miss bolliver was kept in a recumbent position in a dark room for ten weeks, and finally the retina floated back and once more attached itself to the choroid.

HIS FIRST PRE. Soft-Hearted Bridegroom Who Fitied

From the Detroit Free Fress.

Rev. Dr. Blank, now a prominent pastor of a prominent church, had his first charge in a country district, and he tells this story.

"The first couple I married," he says, "came to the house where I boarded and had my study, for I was a bachelor then, and they were genuine specimens of the rustic lover—he tail and gawky, she awkward, but pink cheeked and pretty, as rustic beauty goes. They came in a wagon and it did not take long to perform the ceremony. After it was over I thought it my duty to kiss the bride, and bent forward to do so, when the groom laid his hand on my arm.

"No you don't, mister,' he said, goodnaturedly. "I'll 'tend to that part of it my self,' and he proceeded to do so vigorously.

"I smiled and offered no argument, and as they started out I followed them to the front door. There the groom invited me to come out to the wagon, where he had something for me. He helped the bride in, got in himself beside her on the board seat, and, reaching down behind him, he lifted out a sack of potatoes and handed them over to me. I thanked him and took them as my fee, and was about to tell him good-by when the groom, proudly looking at the girl and at me, said:

"Aln't she a beauty, mister?" from the Detroit Free Press.

and he chucked her under the chin.

'Not that I have seen, I'm sure,' I assented cordially.

'Air you married?' he asked, quite kindly I though again he chucked the chin.

"'No, I'm all alone,"

"I guess there must have been a touch of sadness or regret in my voice, for the groom's face took on the grace of sympathy.

"'Look here, mister,' he said, "I'll tell you what I'll do. If you'll give me back them taters and half a dollar to boot I'll be blamed if you can't kiss the bride!"

"Of course I couldn't be so ungailant as to refuse the ofter if Indeed it would have been safe to have done so, and handling over the potatoes and the only half dollar I had, I gracefully saluted the bride and sent them both on their way with my blessing,"

Thirty Glasses of Beer a Day Hurts Prohibitionists' Feelings Only.

From the Chicago Mail.

'A brewery is the best place in the world to study the effects of beer upon the human system, 'remarked the proprietor of one of the big Chicago breweries last night. 'All our employees are permitted to drink as much beer as they please while at work. In every brewery with which I am acquainted there are now a bar and a bartender. The latter does nothing but draw beer for the workmen as they want it. No charge is made and the workmen can drink beer whenever they want it and in such quantities as they wish. The amount of beer which is consumed by some of our employes in a day is so large that it seems almost incredible. We have several men who at times reach the total of 100 glasses of beer a day, although this is unusual. Few of our men average sixty glasses a day, while the majority of them drink from twenty to thirty glasses a day and some of them average as low as five glasses a day. Brewery employes work ten hours a day, so, if they sleep eight hours, they still have a margin of six hours' idleness, in which they can raise their average outside of brewery limits. All the broweries keep records of the amount of beer consumed by their employes and its effect upon them. Brewery physicians assert that workmen who average twenty-five or more glasses of been a day are in better general health than any class of workmen in other branches of employment.

"According to the report of the physicians employed by the New York Brewers' Beney-lent Association, which looks after the sick employment.

"According to the report of the physicians employed by the New York Brewers' Benevolent Association, which looks after the sick and disabled workmen and the families of deceased brewery workmen, the remarkably large consumption of beer has no deletrious effects. Among 1,000 workmen in a New York district included in the operation of the bureau, the death-rate was only seven a year during five years, and the death of only one patient was attributable to alcoholsm. "The average brewery employe is a strong, ealthy and hearty workman, and if his consupption of beer line any harmful effects ety are not apparent upon the face of the stars."

She was bred by Theodore Winters, and is by Joe Hooker, son of Monday, by Colton, by Lexington, and Mayflower, by imp. Eclipse, son of Orlando, by Touchstone. a stripe of white down her face and white around the coronet of the near front foot. The name of Yo Tamblen means "I Also" or "Me Too." She is one of the best of her famous dam's produce, and has already won this season nearly $30,000. She has a distinguished turf lineage, as she is from winning and producing families on both sides. As a two-year-old she started thirteen times, of which she won eight races. This year she has shown marked improvement, and has proved that she is not only fleet of foot, but a stayer, for her race improvement, and has proved that she is not only fleet of foot, but a stayer, for her race for the Great Western Handleap, at a mile and a half, which she ran in 2:33%, is only half a second behind Firenzi's record. Her performance is better in every way than Firenzi's, as the last named mare was six years old and carried less than weight for age [11], while Yo Tambles carried a age (117), while Yo Tambien carried a pensity. She has started as a 3-year-old ten times, and has suffered only one defeat, when Bashford beat her for the Merchants'

when Bashford beat her for the merchants stakes at Latonia, but she was conceding him ten pounds and sex allowance. She was on this occasion beaten only half a length, the mile and an eighth being made in 1:83½. Yo Tambien's eight victories this year comprise a sweepstake for 3:year-olds at Latonia, the Tobacco Stakes and a purse race at the same meeting, all of which were at a mile. She next won the Garfield Park Derby stemule and a quarter carrying 127 pounds. the same meeting, all of which were at a mile and a quarter carrying 127 pounds and beating Wadsworth. Azra and a good field in 2:40%, but the track was in such terrible condition that no estimate of merit can be gained from the time made. Her next win was in the Boulevard Stakes, for all ages, at Washington Park, Chicago, which she won easily from Farraday, Santlago, etc., running the mile in 1:43. At the same meeting a few days later she won the Drexel Stakes, also at a mile, beating Galindo, Chief Justice and Carlsbad, and winning with great ease in 1:42 with 122 pounds up. This victory she followed by winning the Great Western Handicap, also at the same meeting, on July 14, when she accomplished the feat already referred to above, and on July 19, carrying 19 pounds, won a purse, fl-16 miles, in 1:45½, thus lowering the record by half a second, the best previous record at the distance being 1:46. Tuesday she captured the Twin City Derby, which was decided over a one and one-quarter mile course, from such good ones as Newton and Bollyar Buckner in the handlest kind of a manner. The race was run in a drizzling rain storm in consequence of which the track of a manner. The race was run in a drizzling rain storm, in consequence of which the track was extremely heavy and the time (2:17) very slow. These performances stamp the great daughter of Joe Hooker and Marian as a dangerous rival of the best 3-year-olds of the East, barring not even the great Tamuany, who Matt Byrnes says is the greatest horse he has ever handled, which means a great deal, especially when it is remembered that Byrnes handled the great salvator.

THE POLK BADGET CASE RECALLED. Little Keith, the jockey who died in Chicago Tuesday, the result of injuries sustained in a fall at Garfield the day before, rode the ringer, Polk Badget, last fall, when the betting ring at Latonia was beaten out of nearly $20,000. Little Keith had nothing to do with the crooked work. He was simply engaged to ride the horse. He knew nothing about the identity of Polk Badget and was not ruled off, as were the Brannons, who engineered the job.

EAST ST. LOUIS JOCKEY CLUB. Little Phil, who was moderately supported at 7 to 1, captured the handicap at the course across the river yesterday, by a head, from the favorite, Buckhound, after a desperate contest. San Saba finished third the same distance behind Buckhound. Little May, an equal first choice with Franco at 2 to 1, walked off with the opening scramble; Frank Trim-ble, who closed the second choice at 4 to 1, was successful in the second event: Florence Slaughter, an outsider, wno closed at 12 to 1, won the third race, and Texas Girl, a heavily played second choice at 2½ to 1, defeated Un-lucky and Sea King in the closing event. WHEEL NOTES. WHEEL NOTES.

J. J. Corbett uses a wheel as part of his training for his coming fight with John L. Sullivan. The Manhattan Athletic Club has captured five out of the eight L. A. W. national championships. This is a very creditable record. There are but five wheeling clubs in New York City owning and occupying their own quarters. Philadelphia has thirty bicycle clubs.

Road racing in England is declining. A number of the prominent English clubs have abandoned their road race fixtures, owing to the little interest manifested in these events. AMATEUR ATHLETES.

The all-around championship of the Amateur Athletic Union, which was decided at Travers Island July 16, was, to some extent, a failure, as only one competitor succeeded in qualifying. E. W. Goff, had the standards been the same as they were in 1891, would have been in it, as he threw the 56-pound weight 18 feet 9 inches this year-last year's standard being 18 feet. M. O. Sullivan, the winner, has been a competitor in the allaround championship for very many years, and is certainly deserving of his victory. E. W. Goff is thinking of challenging him for another contest. It is believed that before the next year's all-around championship comes around there will be a change in the standards or some other system adopted to arrive at the average excellence of an all-around competition. The English championship meeting held at London, July 2, was successfully carried out. The New Zealand champions competed, but falled to score better than third in any of the events. W.J. M. Barry, who is well known on this side, won the two weight events. None of the other performances, with the exception of the one mile and four mile races, was out of the ordinary. J. Kibblewhite won the four-mile run in 19m. 50 s.5s. and H. Wade the mile run in 4m. 19 1-5s. winner, has been a competitor in the all-

LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONES. They Are Very Valuable to Business Men

They are Very Valuable to Business Men and Others.

From the Mining Engineer.

Numerous instances could be given of the numer of business questions that can be disposed of in a single talk over the wires within the minimum time of five minntes. Probably the best on record is that where two business men, one in New York and one in Boston, discussed and settled four entirely distinct affairs in one minute and a half. Two of the matters dealt with involved large sums of money, but the men were able to lay their heads together, figuratively speaking, so well, although literally they were so far apart, that it took them but a few seconds in each case to decide on what should be done. It can readily be imagined how many telegrams would have been required to do the same amount of business, leaving entirely aside the question of time, which is often of the first importance. Every day cases occur where the long distence telephone enables business to be done that the telegraph cannot aid, and where the only alternative would be a long and expensive journey. For instance, not long ago a New York man was notified that his draft on a house in a town far up in the interior of the State had been allowed to go to protest, and in order to protect his interests he was on the point of undertaking a journey that would have kept him away from his office for three days, when a friend advised him to telephone to the bank which held his draft.

He did so immediately; the bank informed him of the state of affairs and recommended a lawyer in the town to take the job in hand; he had an interview by telephone with the lawyer and gave him instructions to proceed, and the same afternoon the lawyer reported that he had got out an attachment and that the draft would be fully covered. The time spent by the New York man over the affair so the same afternoon the lawyer reported that he had got out an attachment and that the draft would be fully covered. The time spent by the New York man over the affair so thoroughly have been an hour, and the t

POLLY WENT ON A LARK.

A Philadelphia Parrot Takes a Vacation but Is Stopped by a Crow.

Polly Mitchell, 270 South Fourth street, returned home the other day after an unexpected absence of three days, and the Mineteenth District police were busy until late in the evening transmitting congratulations to their superior officer for the recovery of his much-prized parrot, says a Philadelphia dispatch to the Pittsburg Dispatch.

Nothing was heard from her until Sunday, when she was discovered by several small boys perched on the limb of a tree in St. Peter's graveyard, Fourth and Pine streets, shouting at the top of her voice, "Polly Mitchell!" "Polly Mitchell!" Lieut. Mitchell heard of the location of the missing bird and repaired to the spot. After carrying into effect every scheme his mind could devise calculated to dislodge the bird, and listening with characteristic patience to a thousand or more suggestions from the neighbors and their numerous progeny, the owner of the obstinate Polly gave up the attempt.

owner of the obstinate Polly gave up the attempt.

The bird retained her position throughout the night, and early in the morning the juveniles before referred to held a council of war and renewed the attack. A continuous bombardment was kept up during the morning, during which all the loose cobblestones within several squares and an air gun were called into requisition. It was proposed to summon Battery A to the spot and try the effect of Gatling guns, but its absence at Gretna nipped this proposal in the bud, and the bird would in all probability still be in the tree but for the opportune arrival of a crow.

in the tree but for the opportune arrival of a crow.

The crow scented Polly and swooped down upon her with hostile intent. Polly met the crow half way and there was a thrilling midair battle, during which several of Polly's beautiful feathers fluttered to the ground. After retreating to Fifth street Polly attempted to return to the foliage of the graveyard, but the crow blocked the way and after a short trip to the northward Polly dropped into Union street tyckered out. A fireman from the Union street truck house rescued the bird and received a victous bite on his right thumb, Polly was then turned over to her owner.

A Recount Cuts Down Gladstone's Majority in Parliament.

THE GRAND OLD MAN GREETED HEART-TLY IN LONDON.

Russian Official Reports Show Nearly Fifteen Hundred Deaths From Cholera in Three Days-Sensational Incidents at the Trial of Anarchists-King Oscar's Dilemma-Foreign News.

LONDON, July 28 .- Mr. Gladstone arrived in this city yesterday. When he alighted from the train at the Euston Station, he was given an ovation by thousands of his supporters, who had gathered on the station platform to greet him. Mr. Gladstone looked to be in good health, and smilingly acknowledged the reception accorded him. He was then taken in an open carriage, which was in waiting, and betrayed some symptoms of nervousness when an eager partisan crowded his way to the side of the carriage and began the coachman to drive off quickly.

A second count of the votes cast in the recent election in Greenoch, Scotland, for member of Parliament, shows that Thomas Sutherland, dissident Liberal, received 2,942 votes, against 2,887 cast for Mr. John Bruce, his Liberal opponent, while the first count showed Bruce had been elected. This change in the result reduced Mr. Gladstone's ma-jority in the House to forty, still counting pon the election of the Gladstone candidate n Orkney Island, returns from which dis-rict have not yet been received.

The Liberal Unionists retain this seat, which was supposed to be a Liberal gain, and the supposed capture of which caused great resupposed capture of which caused great re-joicing among the Liberals on the threshhold of election. Sir Thomas Sutherland repre-sented Greenock in the late Parliament, having been elected in 1886.

It is stated that Joseph Cowen, proprietor of the Newcastle Chronicle, and noted for his independence in politics, has agreed to oppose Morley should the latter, which is almost certain, be appointed a member of Mr. Gladstone's Cabinet and offer himself for re-election. When Mr. Cowen was a candidate with Mr. Moriey in 1885 for the two Newcastle seats Mr. Cowen had a larger majority than Mr. Morley, Mr. Cowen's vote being 10,489 and Mr. Morley's 10,129. Mr. Cowen did not offer himself for re-election when the split arose on the home rule question, and his party orthodoxy has been held in doubt by many. Since his retirement from Parliament he has written extensively for his own newspaper and for other political and literary publications. The statement that he will oppose Mr. Morley has caused a decided sensation among the parties.

GENERAL FORFIGN NEWS.

SENSATIONAL INCIDENTS AT THE TRIAL OF FRENCH ANARCHISTS.

Paris, July 28.—During the trial at Ver- Rentapplied if purchased. sailles of four Anarchists charged with stealing a quantity of dynamite which was used in explosions of last May Day one of the prisoners, named Etievent, was told by the Judge to stand. Instead of complying with the order, however, the prisoner remained while plowing in a field on Jesse control and important prisoner remained.

The Judge answered: 'I am a magistrate and need not rise to speak to you.' Thereupon Etievant retorted: 'One man is as good as another. Get up if you want to speak to me; then I will get up too."

The other prisoners followed the example of bravado set by Etlevant and adopted equally as insolent mien toward the Judge. Each in turn began a violent harangue and tried to expatiate on the subject of anarchy. The Judge, however, refused to listen to them and after a scene of disorder

PROTAND'S DENINDS ON MOROCCO VIENNA, July 28.—It is stated that the draft of the treaty with Sir Charles Evan Smith, the British representative, recently pre-sented for the signature of the Sultan of Morocco, contained clauses providing for the creation of a Moorish State bank, with English capital; the creation of a police force in Tangier controlled by Englishmen; the crection of fortifications by the English on the highlands of Marchan; the cession to En-gland of various plots of land and the recognition of the sovereignty of England over

OTTOMAN PERSECUTIONS.

CRISIS APPROACHING IN THE AFFAIRS OF THE SULTAN.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 28.—The persecution of the Ottoman reform party continues unabated. Most vigorous measures are enforced to suppress the agitation, and numerous arrests have been made. The Sultan is convinced that there is a conspiracy affoct to depose him. The constitutional party is daily increasing, being recruited from all classes. Great confusion reigns in the Yildiz Klosk. Ministerial responsibility is a mere farce, and the Sultan is really in the hands of an arbitrary court cabal.

The reactionary party in Turkey has little faith in the Sultan, despite the fact that a few months ago in deference to Mohammedan, bigotry he dismissed his liberal and broadminded Ministers of the so-called 'new Turk' school, and replaced them by men who are distinguished themselves by their intolerance towards everything Christian.

Apparently the Sultan at the time this course was adopted had decided to abandon his pretensions to consideration as a European sovereign with liberal progressive ideas, and by inaugurating an era of reaction to win back the affection and regard of the Mohammedan population, not alone of the Sultan of Turkey he would never be regarded as anything else than the sick man of European politics, he could as supreme head of the Mohammedan religion become and remain one of the greatest powers of the world.

But this change of policy has not brought peace and security to Abdul Hamid. It came too late to quiet the minds of the leaders of the fanatical Turks of the old school, and the Sultan by adopting a policy of conciliation has really placed himself in the hands of his enemies, whom he called to the most responsible positions in the Government. The fate of his brother Murad, whom he succeeded, may be his soon.

**NEARLY FIFTEEN HUNDRED DEATHS IN THREE DAYS.**

St. Petersburg, July 28.—The official choicera reports for July 23, 24 and 25 for all Russia show 2,683 new cases and 1,465 deaths. The Zemstov of Kassan has asked the Treasury for a loan of 500,000 roubles for sanitary measures. Similar applications are expected from other provinces that suffered from famine in 1891. This foreshadows a repetition of the famine unless more rigorous measures are taken.

se every material alteration in the market price.

It was thus that the sliding scale came to be adopted, and its workings, though by no means wholly satisfactory, have been productive of fewer strikes than the old system. There rarely is trouble when the market price is high, as the manufacturers' profits increase at the same time the workmen's wages increase. Recently the market price has been vibrating around the minimum of the sliding scale, and at the time of the Homestead lockout it was below the minimum, so that the workmen were paid in the scale higher than the market price of the product. The manufacturers sought to lower the minimum so as to make the workmen share in the reduction below the minimum market price of the scale. This was one of the points of contention.

farm, in Buckingham township, near Furlong, one day recently, Frank Doan struck a curiously shaped flint stone of a kind not found in that vicinity. It was about five inches long by about one and a half inches wide in the center, with the edges sharp but irregular. Convinced that it was an implement left by former Indian residents of that neighborhood, it having been found on the site of a wood, near a chestnut tree that is said to be over two hundred years old, Mr. Doan concluded to investigate further. He then dug down several feet and was rewarded by finding 110 stones of the same shape and kind, which those learned in the ways of the aborigines say are "skinning knives." These implements were undoubtedly brought to that section years ago by the Indians, and Mr. Doan intends to make further search in the fall for other Indian relics.

ALICE MITCHELL

The Story Told by Freda Ward's Slayer

on the Witness Stand. is, Tenn., July 28.—The next step in the remarkable judicial history of the Mitchell-Ward tragedy will be Judge Dubose's instructions to the jury. They will be delivered to-morrow. Last evening counsel on both sides rested and announced that they were willing to submit the case without ar-were willing to submit the case without argument.

The most interesting scene of the trial occurred yesterday afternoon, when the Judge decided that Alice Mitcheil, the defendant, might be placed upon the stand by the State and submitted to examination by Attorney-General. During the ordeal the prisoner's father and brother watched her with ill-suppressed emotion. Tears coursed down the old man's cheeks, and when it was all over he was totally unstrung. Indeed, there was but one person in the large assemblage who did not feel the relaxation of the severe tension of that half hour and that was the object of interest herself. She seated herself so as not to crumple her dress and immediately entered into conversation with those around her, talking in an animated way and laughing gaily at intervals.

If there was anything lacking to prove to the minds of the people who have closely watched the proceedings from day to day that Alice Mitchell is insane the story of her affection for Freda Ward, and the motive which prompted the murder fully supplied the missing evidence.

When the prisoner was placed on the witness stand she was asked by the Attorney-

"How long have you known Freda Ward?"
"As long as I can remember."
"Did you want her to marry Ashley Roselle?"
"Not, you want her to marry Ashley Roselle?"
"Why not?"
"Because I wanted her myself."

"Here the witness broke down and wept.]
"Did any words pass between you and Freda just efore the killing?" "Did any words pass between your before the killing?"
"No, sir, she only winked her eye at me as she passed me in front of the custom-house."
"Did that mean anything in particular?".
"Feda always told me that winking the right eye meant "love you."
"Why did you follow Freda down the stone

"Why did you follow Freda down the stone walk?"
"To cut her," and the girl's mouth shut down like a vice when she had spoken.
"Why did you want to cut her?"
"Because I knew Houldn't have her and I did not want anybody else to have her. I knew Harry Bligar loves Freda and I thought ashley Rossile did, marry him."

The witness then detailed the story of the killing of Freda Ward as follows: killing of Freda Ward as follows:

As I started down the hill I took the razor out of my pocket, and when I overtook her I cut her with the razor. I slashed her throat with the first stroke. She pulled away a little and said, "Oh, Alice!" or something like that. Then came a scream from Jo Ward or Christina Parnell, I don't know which. I let go of Freda and turned around and Jo Ward smashed me with an umbrella, saying: "You dirty dog, what are you doing to my sister?" I said: "I'm doing what I came here to do, and I don't care if I hang for it." Jo raised the umbrella to strike me again and I can her on the chia, I think. I did not want to hur: Jo, but when the called much as a word of the chia, I think. I did not want to hur: Jo, but when the called much as a word of the chia, I think. I did not want to hur Jo, but when the called much as a word of the limended to cut Freda's throat and then cut my own, but Jo bothered me and so I ran after Freda and cut her again, I did not want to butcher her up that way. All I wanted to do was to kill her. Somehow I forgot to kill myself."

To Gen. Wright the witness replied as follows to questions:

"Were you going to have a mustache?" asked Gen. Wright.
"Yees, sir. Freda wanted me to have one. I didn't

"How were you going to get one?"
"By shaving."
She said she first got the razor on the 1st of November last. Freda had told her that she and Jo would be down from Gold Dust some time in November.
She had come near cutting Freda's throat on the 7th of January, when the latter passed her in front of a something like a sigh, "and I could not get the razor without her seeing me. I did not want Lil to know what I was going to do."

Referring to her proposition to Freda Ward that they should both commit suicide by taking laudanum, witness said: "I told Freda, when she refused, that it she would go to sleep I wouldn't take the stuff; I didn't intend to take it, any way. I intended to put the laudanum in her mouth while she was sleeping, so she would swallow it when she

"I have wanted to die ever since Freda did," said the witness saily.

"Do you intend to try to kill yourself again?"

"I don't know, but I want to die."

"That thumbstall with the blood on it, do you want to preserve it as a keepsake!"

"Yes, sir,"
"Yes, sir," it will do you good to look at it?"

"Yes, sir, I'm sur it will."

A LEMON EATER.

Lemons in Sixty Days.

Ate 930 lemons in sixty days. This is the accomplishment of a resident of the West End, who is now lying flat on his back as a result, says the Cincinnati Enquirer.

The feat was done by Geo, Unverzagt, who lives on Liberty street. He is employed by Stille & Duhimeier, and a short time ago contracted a bad case of rheumatism. He went to a number of doctors and asked their aid in pulling him through his bothersome ailment. He was prescribed for many times, but all the drugs he could conveniently pile into himself seemed to effect no change in his condition. Lemons in Sixty Days.

himself seemed to effect no change in his condition.

He was advised by friends to try various treatments unknown to the doctors, but which had accomplished some wonderful cures. For a long time Underzagt carried two raw potatoes in either pants pocket, but found his disease only getting worse. Warm baths were also recommended to him and he took them continuously until somebody informed him he had been seriously mistaken, and that cold baths were quite the thing for rheumatism. So the victim took cold baths, which in a short time almost caused ossification; so he stopped this so-called remedy.

After having tried a number of like treatments upon the recommendation of people who claimed to be his friends Unverzagt was told one day that lemons, taken properly, would effect a positive and permanent cure of his sickness. His informant said he was no doctor, and would not be one if he could, but that he knew a thing or two about such matters. His manner was so convincing that his victim determined to give his advice a little practice. He must eat a lemon the first day, and increase the dose one each day for thirty days. On the thirtieth day he should eat thirty lemons, and from then on he was to go backward, decreasing the dose in the same manner as he had advanced until another thirty days were up, when he would be a cured man.

Unverzagt had always heard that lemons another thirty days were up, when he would be a cured man.

Unversagt had always heard that lemons were good for rheumatism, and this fact made him place more than ordinary faith in the new prescription. He commenced the treatment about seventy days ago, and, strange to say, carried it out to the very letter. He ate 300 lemons in that time and now the wonder is that he is living. He is being treated by the doctors for a poisonous condition brought about by the reception of such an extraordinary amount of acid into his system.

The case has excited a great deal of inter-The case has excited a great deal of interest and Unverzagt, who right along made known to his neighbors the means he was using to cure himself of rheumatism, is called "the lemon eater." Certainly he beats all records in this direction, and his associates look upon him with a sort of awe when they contemplate the power of a system capable of counteracting the effect of so much acidity.

From the New York Herald.

It was about 10 o'clock at night and forty or fifty passengers were in the depotor strolling about on the platform when a young man with a very long neck and a very long drawit to his voice came up to six or eight of us who sat on a big baggage truck and said:

"Well, but" — began the young man, but no one paid any attention, and he retired.

It wasn't five minutes before a man came out of the waiting-room and stood before us "Any one here got anything to drink? I'm spittin' whole bales of cotton, and there isn't a saloon within half a mile."

"Why not?"

"Because we are not filling up duffers! Go on, now, or I'll throw you over the house!"

"Will you? Whoop! That's my game and here goes!"

He seized the story teller and gave him a toss which landed him on the ridge pole of the station house. Then he grabbed the next nearest and tossed him upon the awning, and the third went over a pile of baggage and into the tender of a switch engine. The rest of us got out of his reach, and he picked up the baggage truck and flung it up to the beams of the water tank.

He had a negro man ready to toss when the young man came ont and seized him and took him away. The three men had just been helped down when the long-necked young man came back to ask if anyone was burt.

HE WON HER TWICE,

A Couple Astonished to Find They Had Wed Each Other Before.

From the New York Recorder.

There recently passed through San Antonio en route to the City of Mexico the principals in a romance stranger than was ever woven into drama or story. Nearly twenty years ago George Dunhaven, a prosperous young English tradesman, became involved in a difficulty with a neighbor and killed him. The act was done in self-defense, but the only witness was an enemy of Dunhaven, and he perjured himself for the sake of revenge. Dunraven was held to answer to the charge of murder, and, seeing no hope of securing justice, he effected his escape and fied to this country under an assumed name. For a year he punched cattle in West Texas, then went down into Mexico and devoted his attention to mining. He prospered, and in a couple of years was worth a great deal of money. In Mexico he met a handsome American girl who was traveling with her father and invalid mother. An attachment sprung up and they became engaged, but the father objected. Before the young lady left Mexico she was secretly married to Dunhaven, he promising that he elling with her latter and invalid mother. An attachment sprung up and they became engaged, but the father objected. Before the young lady left Mexico she was secretly married to Dunhaven, he promising that he would dispose of his Mexican property and follow her to the States. There another attempt was to be made to overcome the objections of the father and falling, Dunhaven was to claim his bride. Shorily after the departure of the Americans the young husband received word from a relative in England that the witness had made a confession completely exonerating him, and he decided to return to his native land, clear up his record and assume his rightful name before claiming his bride. He wrote to her explaining matters, but the letter miscarried. When he returned to America he found his wife's parents both dead, and that she had gone, no one knew whither. He searched for her during an entire year, then, concluding that she had abandoned him, returned to England. There he entered the British army and was sent abroad. Three years ago he left the service and purchased a handsome home near Manchester and devoted his time to the education of his widowed sister's children. The governess of the latter was a handsome, accomplished woman and Dunhaven fell desperately in love with her. Not knowing whether his first wife was living or dead, he did not feel at liberty to declare his passion. He came to America and made another exhaustive but futile search for the missing bride, and returned to England fully satisfied that he was a free man. He laid slege to the heart of the stately governess and was accepted. She told him that she had been once bride, and returned to England fully satisfied that he was a free man. He laid slege to the heart of the stately governess and was accepted. She told him that she had been once married, but was deserted by her husband, from whom she subsequently secured a divorce. By her first marriage she had one child, a daughter who was at school in America. And so they were wedded. Dunhaven's happiness was soon disturbed, however, by whispers that his wife had deceived him. A meddlesome friend suggested that no one had ever seen a record of Mrs. Dunhaven's first marriage. The wrathful husband soundly caned the doubter of his wife's honor, but that only set a hundred tonsues to wagging where one had wagged before. Like Othello, Dunhaven began to grow suspicious. Like most good husbands, he stood a little in awe of his wife, and hesitated to ask her for proofs of her early marriage. When he did so he had become so suspicious that, with true American spirit, his wife told a little in awe of his wife, and hesitated to ask her for proofs of her early marriage. When he did so he had become so suspicious that, with true American spirit, his wife told him plainly that, if he could not dependupon her unsupported word, he was at liberty to leave her, Leave her he did, but was soon back, suing for forgiveness. She graciously forgave him, and then bade him secure passage on the next steamer for America.

"Your doubts will return," she said. "I must set them at rest forever."

She took him directly to the City of Mexico, and there showed him the record of her marriage, and introduced him to the priest who performed the ceremony and who fully identified her. That marriage register did more than set his doubts at rest; it astounded him. It proved that in 1875 the woman by his side was not only married, but married to himself. The wife was as much astounded as the husband, and it took them fully an hour to understand just how it all happened. It seems that the young wife, weary of waiting for her husband, returned to Mexico. She there learned that he had gone to England. She followed him, and was searching for her in America. In England her babe was born, and feeling that she was deserted by the man she loved, she discarded his name and took that of her mother. She devoted herself to teaching and finally returned to America. Here she secured a divorce and placed her daughter in school. She had not ceased to love the man who had married her in Mexico so many years before. The daughter was telegraphed for, and met her mother and long-lost sire in this city on their return from Mexico, and together they proceeded to England. It is a strange drama in real life, and one without a "heavy villain."

CAMELS IN ARIZONA. The Herd Still Increasing-A Burro's Fright.

Phoenix Letter to the San Francisco Chronicle.

Phenix Letter to the San Francisco Chronicle.

The original number of fifteen in the herd of wild camels that runs on the Arizona desert between Yuma and Ehrenburg on the north and south and Wickenburg and the Colorado River on the east and west, has increased to more than sixty, notwithstanding that a number of them have been captured and taken away by the circus representatives and the prospectors kill them every time they have the opportunity.

The original fifteen were brought to this country at the instigation of the United States Government before the war, for the purpose of packing military stores across the desert, and were used for that purpose for two or three years. It was found that pebbles and bould are were too severe for their feet, and while they did very well on the sand of the desert, as soon as they reached the foothills their feet became so sore that they were unable to travel, and finally they were turned loose to take care of themselves.

For a number of years there were no white were turned loose to take selves.

For a number of years there were no white men through the part of the desert in which they ranged, and as the Indians were very superstitious about them they were not molested until within the last few years, when they had increased to more than 100. Later on they became a source of annoyance to the prospectors on account of the fear the horses had for them, and they began killing the camels.

horses had for them, and they began killing the camels.

I well remember the first time I saw them. I was coming across from the Colorado to the Harqua Halla on foot, with my supplies and cooking utensils packed on a burro that had seen long service in that line of business. I was only provided with water enough for myself, and on account of not having had anything to drink for a day and night the animal was pretty stupid, so much so that now and then I had to throw a stone at him to keep him going.

animal was pretty stupid, so much so that now and then I had to throw a stone at him to keep him going.

We were coming through a vast expanse of greaseweed almost as high as my head, when suddenly the burro stopped, raised his head, and gave a snort that could have been heard half a mile. I thought it must be Indians, and, throwing a cartridge into my Winchester, took cover in the brush. Peering over the top of the weeds I soon saw the camels coming with their peculiar swinging trot, showing only their heads and humps above the brush.

That burro evinced more life than I had ever seen him show before, and I do not think any horse in the country could have outrun him. My pack broke in the first 100 yards, and meat, beans, coffee, and tools were scattered for five miles. The camels went on their way, and it was several years until I saw any of them again, when one of them was captured and brought into Phoenix, where it finally died.

A BROTHER'S TRIBUTE.

The Man Is Dead, but His Memory Will Live Forever.

You have asked me to give you a brief sketch of my brother, Cyrus W. Field, whose life has just closed, writes Rev. Henry M. Field in the Independent. At first, as you know, I refused I could not do it. The tiles were too tender. We were rocked in the same cradle; we slept in the same bird's nest of a room, with the same sweet mother's face bending over each little bed for the good night kiss. Together we trotted off to school. Thus in childhood and boyhood we were inseparable. This close association made me shrink from speaking of what was so personal and sacred; but on second thought this very nearness to one who was gone from the world seemed to impose an foligation, and perhaps I owed it to his memory to give a glimpse of those early years in which the boy was truly father of the man.

And now we have brought him away from the great city where he passed his busy life, back to the quiet valley where he was born, and laid him down in the shadow of the encircling hills. "Bury me there," he said, "by the side of my beloved wife and by my father and mother!" The grave has closed over him, and in that place of rest all his sorrows are buried. Only the work that he has done remains. That is enough. The hemispheres that he has "moored side by side" will never be separated. Thereby distant nations and races are brought nearer together—a service to commerce and civili zation and to the brotherhood of man, which the world will not willingly let die.

A BIG GAME PRESERVE,

What Austin Corbin Is Doing to!Perpe uate American Sports.

Austin Corbin's huge game park in New Hampshire is a success chiefly in relation to the breeding of the animals in their new environment—it can hardly be called captivity, when the animals are at liberty to wander at their own sweet will over 25,000 acres of woodland, hill and valley.

Of the twenty-two buffalo which were put in about a year ago eight of the cows are now in calf, and two young have been added to the herd. The elk, which bred to a limited extent on Mr. Corbin's Long Island estate, have found their mountainous New Hampshire home more to their liking, and have already increased 50 per cent. Next to the elk the most accurate count has been kept of the moose, who, unlike their gregarious brethren, go in pairs at certain seasons. The other animals are also increasing.

While in London two years since Mr. Corbin bought 20,000 hawthorn trees. Four thousand of these have been planted this spring. They are for the purpose of forming a hedge strong enough to prevent the buffalo and other large animals from getting out. This tree, of which there are two varieties, the white and black, is used very extensively for inclosing the game parks of England and Europe. There will be no hunting in the park at present, though in future years, when the animals have multiplied beyond the resources of their domain, it is possible than Mr. Corbin may adopt this method of when the animals have multiplied beyond the resources of their domain, it is possible than Mr. Corbin may adopt this method of thinning them out. It is sufficient to say that the park is not designed for hunting. Neither is it primarily intended for scientific research into the habits, breeding, etc., of the various animals.

The development of Mr. Corbin's game park enterprise is being watched with decided interest by sportsmen and naturalists. Success in New Hampshire, when it shall have been demonstrated beyond the peradventure of a doubt, will prompt similar enterprises in other parts of the country. While much interest is being felt in the introduction of foreign species, Americans are naturally most concerned with the successful conservation of bands of American big game—the elk and the antelope and the buffalo.

A QUEER FARO GAME.

His System Beat the Bank, but Wouldn't

Do for Earthquakes. Whenever I see a faro game I am reminded of a story told on Silverpeg, an old prospector. He was a tacturn man, and spent most of his time prospecting in Sonora and Arizona. He got his nickname from the fact that one of his legs was amputated at the knee, necessitating his wearing a wooden peg, and the additional fact that he was always prospecting for silver. Silverpeg had two ambitions in life—one was to strike a rich silver mine, in which event he swore he would make himself a silver leg to replace the wooden one he hobbled around on; the other was to beat at faro by his system. His system was for certain cards to win clear through and others to lose in the same manner.

system was for certain cards to win clear through and others to lose in the same manner.

For years Silverpeg has spent his summers in prospecting without finding a "rich silver mine." On the advent of winter he would come to town and endeavor to break the faro banks with his system. The day the earthquake occurred he was at Bavispe, Sonora, and was playing faro. He was playing his system, and had been coppering the jack. The jack had lost three times. Silverpeg was in a happy mood, as his system was proving a winning one. He coppered the jack clear up to the limit, being sure that his system was right and that the jack would lose out. But before the dealer could make a turn the earthquake came, the walls of the house shook and the chairs and tables began to slide over the floor, and the dealers and players being badly frightened made a rush for the door. When they got out on the street the snock was over. The players, after recovering from their fright, resumed their places at the table. They had been so suddenly surprised by the shock that they had not gathered up their checks, which on their return were apparently just as they had been placed. The dealer took his seat, made a turn and the jack lost.

The shock had knocked the copper off of Silverpeg's bet, and he had not noticed it. The dealer took the bet in and Silverpeg must his remaining chips he cashed them in, and turning to the players, he said: "Boys, I played faro before I learned the Lord's Prayer; I have tackled brace games before, but this is the first time I ever struck a bank where Providence stood in with the house My system was all right, and if the Lord had held back that shock a few deals I would have broke the bank. I can beat the box, but I can't beat Providence. I will never play faro again; the odds are too great."

Silverpeg kept his word, and no inducement could ever persuade him to play faro.

Lectured the King.

From the Galignani Messenger. From the Galignani Messenger.

A certain American lady lately had a curious adventure while visiting Wurtemburg. The King of that country like the Kaiser, is a very indifferent whip, and while entering the Stuttgart Schloss nearly drove over a lady who was crossing the road. She, however, with the sangfreid characteristic of the daughters of the West, promptly seized the horses' heads and told the King in pretty strong terms what she thought of his conduct.

The young lady was unaware that she was giving the length of her tongue to a king until the next day, when she received a letter from one of his Majesty's chamberiains begging her acceptance of the royal photograph as a souvenir of his clumsiness and her escape.

Vanderbilt's Way.

From the Pail Mall Gazette.

A writer in the Figuro throws an interesting light upon Mr. Vanderblit's method of buying pictures. The millionaire, it seems, went once to Meissonier and asked him which of his works was, in his own opinion, his chei-d'œuvre. Meissonier answered: "The Chess Players." "Whom does it belong to?" was Mr. Vanderblit's next question. "To Herr. Meyer of Dresden," was the answer. That very night Mr. Vanderblit dispatched a secretary to Dresden, who went straight to Herr Meyer and demanded to know his price. "£10,000," replied the owner, thinking that he had effectually frightened his interrogator. "I take it," said the secretary, to the great astonishment of Herr Meyer, and take it he did. From the Pail Mall Gazette.

ing one, it's a remedy that's sure to give it. Practically, it's sold on trial. That's what it amounts to. If it doesn't give satisfaction, in the building-up and strengthening of overtaxed womanhood, and the complete cure of all the delicate derangements, functional disturbances, and painful disorders peculiar to the sex—then you have your money back.

You'd think that any medicine could be sold so, if it did all that's claimed for it. Exactly.

Exactly.

But the fact remains that out of all the medicines for women, "Favorite Prescription" is the only one that's sold on such terms.

Knowing these things, it's an insult to your intelligence to have something else, that pays the dealer better, offered as "just as good."
